Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As the Lunatkicks prepare to grace the fantasy football arena with their presence in 2025, they find themselves occupying a rather exotic position—dead last in their division and just shy of the bottom of the overall heap. Their strategy, if you can call it that, seems to revolve around hoarding an impressive array of wide receivers, perhaps under the impression that one can steamroll through the season with sheer pass-catching volume. With luminaries like Ja'Marr Chase and Travis Hunter leading the charge, they boast the finest receiving corps in their neck of the woods. Meanwhile, Jonnu Smith, the tight end of questionable repute, appears poised to provide comic relief as he aims to fill the enormous shoes left by the concept of a "strong tight end." In an act of dazzling foresight, the Lunatkicks reached ambitiously for a handful of players well ahead of their ADPs, most notably Drake Maye—a move that has clearly set them on the fast track to mediocrity. As they delicately balance this teetering tower of optimism, one can only assume their master plan involves hoping Kyler Murray and Marvin Harrison Jr. develop some sort of telepathic connection, lest they continue to languish at the bottom of the proverbial fantasy barrel.

TE: Tyler Conklin (TE38 | $0 | 20.05)

As KaepCausualty teeters on the precipice of another grueling season, their prospects appear daunting. Cemented near the bottom of both their division and overall rankings, the team's weaknesses are glaring. While their wide receiver corps remains a beacon of hope, boasting talents like Puka Nacua and A.J. Brown, the front office's gamble on De'Von Achane in the first round could haunt them, especially as their running back depth leaves much to be desired. Meanwhile, Marvin Mims stepping into a starting role underscores the fragility of their lineup. The tight end situation further compounds their troubles, offering little relief as they face formidable opponents. Despite securing Patrick Mahomes to connect with Xavier Worthy for sporadic boost, the team's inconsistent draft strategy raises questions. With A.J. Brown arriving at a fortuitous value and Christian Kirk procured prematurely, any success hinges on these calculated risks paying off. Navigating through a season filled with formidable adversaries, KaepCausualty must hope their stars align to escape the doldrums.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms, BuschTheGreat finds itself in a challenging position, staring down another year of uphill battles. Ranked 10th in its division and sitting in the 22nd percentile overall, the team seems poised for a tough campaign. A glaring weakness at quarterback is evident with Cam Ward, J.J. McCarthy, and an aging Aaron Rodgers, none of whom inspire much confidence as reliable starters. While McCarthy represents a savvy late-round selection, the investment in Rodgers feels costly given his draft position compared to his expected contribution. The team's strength lies in its impressive array of running backs, featuring Ashton Jeanty and Omarion Hampton, both capable of carrying the load, complemented by consistent performers like Josh Jacobs and Chase Brown. This depth is unmatched within their division, offering a glimmer of hope amid the overall bleak projection. However, the wide receiver corps appears thin, and with Zach Ertz as the starting tight end, there are clear vulnerabilities that opponents may exploit. The strategic gamble taken on Jaylen Warren might pay off if fortune favors the bold, but significant missteps in draft strategy have left the team struggling for balance. BuschTheGreat will need its running backs to deliver extraordinary seasons to overcome these deficiencies and climb the ranks in what promises to be a grueling competition.

TE: Ja'Tavion Sanders (TE30 | $0 | 15.10), Will Dissly (TE44 | $0 | 21.10)

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, team reginaldo finds itself in a challenging yet promising position. Currently ranked ninth in the Angel City FC division and sitting in the 34th percentile overall, the team looks to improve its standings with a strategic focus on key players. Reginaldo's wide receiver depth is noteworthy, featuring the likes of Davante Adams WR20 and DK Metcalf WR23 leading the charge. However, there's a spotlight on Luther Burden WR57, who is anticipated to play a crucial role despite being regarded as a potential weak link. His performance could significantly influence reginaldo's trajectory this season. While expectations are high for standout plays from Jameson Williams WR29 and George Pickens WR31, the team has to navigate its tight end challenges carefully. With strategic maneuvers and a balanced approach, reginaldo aims to climb the ranks and make a notable impact both within their division and in the broader competition landscape.

As the curtain rises on the 2025 fantasy football season, infamousjtv is ready to strut its stuff in the Angel City FC division, sitting comfortably at a lucky number 7 rank. The team's strategy could be compared to a tightly woven quilt, where tight ends Trey McBride, Dalton Kincaid, and Dallas Goedert are the golden threads holding everything together. With a TE Premium setup, these guys are not just playing catch; they're orchestrating symphonies on the field. In the wide receiver department, Ladd McConkey is dazzling opponents with his fancy footwork, while Tee Higgins and DeVonta Smith are ready to leap tall defenders in a single bound. Calvin Ridley adds a touch of magic, and Emeka Egbuka, though ranked 49th, is like the wildcard joker in a deck of aces—his performance could make or break the season's fortune. Draft day was a rollercoaster, with James Cook scooped up at a bargain price, while Joe Burrow was eagerly snatched earlier than anticipated, because who can resist stacking him with Tee Higgins? It's like pairing peanut butter with jelly. As infamousjtv hovers in the 48th percentile, there's a twinkle of hope that this team will channel its inner phoenix and rise through the ranks. Let the pigskin pageantry begin!

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, SteelAju enters the competition with a mix of strengths and challenges. Ranked 8th in their division, Angel City FC, and in the 47th percentile overall, they're looking to improve upon last year's performance. The team boasts a powerful running back lineup led by Jahmyr Gibbs and Jonathan Taylor, both of whom are poised to carry the load alongside veteran Alvin Kamara. However, quarterback concerns linger with Brock Purdy and Geno Smith, whose performances could be pivotal in determining the team's success. Wide receivers Jaxon Smith-Njigba and D.J. Moore will be key targets as they aim to elevate the passing game, while tight end remains a position of concern. Although J.K. Dobbins is slated as an important factor, his consistency will be crucial for maintaining offensive momentum. With some savvy draft picks, including snagging Purdy at a value spot, SteelAju hopes these strategic moves will translate into climbing the ranks as the season unfolds.

TE: Cade Otton (TE24 | $0 | 14.10)

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Frank2616 is poised to make a strong showing with a dynamic roster that's well-positioned to climb the ranks. Currently sitting at 6th in their division and in the 54th percentile overall, this team boasts one of the strongest quarterback lineups in the competition. With Josh Allen QB2 leading the charge and Baker Mayfield QB9 providing solid backup, their aerial attack is certain to rack up points. Furthermore, the wide receiver corps, featuring standouts like Malik Nabers WR4 and Brian Thomas Jr. WR8, promises to deliver electrifying performances week in and week out. While the running back situation presents a challenge, with key players like David Montgomery RB28 and Najee Harris RB36 needing to step up, there's potential for them to surprise and contribute significantly to the team's success. The selection of Josh Allen slightly later than expected was a savvy move, enhancing Frank2616's strategic depth. The addition of Mike Evans WR21 complements Baker Mayfield nicely, offering a small stack bonus that could turn pivotal matchups in their favor. Despite a weaker tight end position, the team's overall strength lies in its ability to capitalize on high-value drafts and smart roster pairings. As the season unfolds, Frank2616's balanced strategy and potential for explosive plays give them a promising outlook to improve their standings and make some noise.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Swift Love Hurts Penix looks poised for an exciting journey. With a solid fifth-place standing in their division, this team has a strong foundation to build upon. The tight end duo of Brock Bowers and Mark Andrews promises to be a formidable force in the TE Premium setup, giving them an edge over many competitors. Although Michael Pittman is considered a crucial player on the roster, his performance will be closely watched as he aims to exceed expectations. The wide receiver lineup, led by Drake London and Chris Godwin, is expected to contribute significantly to the team's success. Notably, the team managed to secure Rhamondre Stevenson and Mark Andrews at excellent value, adding depth and flexibility to their roster. Additionally, the late-round acquisition of Tank Bigsby could prove to be a masterstroke, providing unexpected returns as the season progresses. While MarShawn Lloyd was drafted slightly ahead of his ADP, the gamble may very well pay off. With these strategic moves and a promising lineup, Swift Love Hurts Penix is ready to make a significant impact this season and climb to new heights.

As megsok gears up for the 2025 fantasy football season, this team is poised to build on the momentum of last year's impressive campaign. With a solid finish in the upper ranks and a winning percentage that speaks to their competitive edge, megsok is set to make waves once again. Their tight end lineup, featuring the likes of George Kittle, T.J. Hockenson, David Njoku, and Travis Kelce, stands as an undeniable powerhouse, offering unmatched strength and versatility. While quarterback slots may be a concern with Jared Goff and Sam Darnold, the team compensates with a potential game-changer in Amon-Ra St. Brown, who pairs perfectly with Goff for a tactical advantage. The strategic draft choices, especially snagging David Njoku and Amon-Ra St. Brown later than expected, highlight the team's savvy approach. Although Darnell Mooney presents a variable factor, his performance could be the catalyst that propels megsok even higher in both competitions. As they navigate through a challenging season, their remarkable depth and key player synergies promise an exciting and potentially triumphant run.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Calebs Care Bears are poised to make a strong impact in both their division and overall tournament rankings. With a solid foundation secured by their formidable running backs Christian McCaffrey and Derrick Henry, complemented by the promising Breece Hall, the team exhibits a relentless rushing attack that rivals any other. Despite their quarterback challenges, Caleb Williams is expected to provide steady leadership on the field. The tight end depth in this TE Premium setup is nothing short of impressive, with standout performances anticipated from Sam LaPorta and Evan Engram. Jake Ferguson, acquired at excellent value, is expected to play a pivotal role, adding depth and flexibility to the lineup. The team's strategic draft choices, particularly Isaac Guerendo, highlight shrewd management decisions that could give the Care Bears a competitive edge. With a small stack bonus from pairing Caleb Williams with Tyler

Warren, the team adds another layer of tactical complexity. Though their wide receiver core may not be ranked as highly, Tyreek Hill and Rome Odunze are set to surpass expectations and contribute significantly. Positioned securely in the upper echelons of their competition, Calebs Care Bears are set to deliver an exciting and dynamic season, characterized by their tenacious spirit and strategic acumen.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, SC is primed for an electrifying campaign, boasting a powerhouse wide receiver lineup that is the envy of Angel City FC. Led by the sensational Justin Jefferson, who continues to redefine the position, and supported by rising stars like Nico Collins and Tre Harris, SC's aerial attack promises weekly fireworks. Zay Flowers and Courtland Sutton provide depth and dynamism on the wings, while Jaylen Waddle and Jerry Jeudy add agility and precision to an already formidable squad. Despite a weaker tight end position, SC's strategic foresight during the draft has set them up for success, with key acquisitions like Jayden Daniels and Khalil Shakir offering incredible value. Though Tua Tagovailoa stands as a question mark amidst these juggernauts, his potential to surprise and excel could be the X-factor that elevates SC to the pinnacle of the rankings.

In the backfield, Chuba Hubbard and James Conner form a dependable duo, ready to step up when called upon. As SC steps onto the field, they carry the hopes of their fans, aiming not just to dominate their division but to make an indelible mark on the season with their potent mix of talent, strategy, and promise.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Jacksons Lambs are poised for a thrilling run, riding high at the top of Angel City FC and boasting an impressive overall rank in the 94th percentile. Quarterback Lamar Jackson is set to lead the charge with his elite QB1 status, bringing both electrifying plays and consistency to the table. Dak Prescott, slotted at QB15, provides a solid backup option, ensuring stability in the quarterback position. The wide receiver corps, led by CeeDee Lamb (WR3) and bolstered by Garrett Wilson (WR14), Rashee Rice (WR15), and Jayden Reed (WR45), promises dynamic performances that will keep defenses on their toes. Although Zach Charbonnet (RB37) is seen as a slightly weaker link, the backfield remains competitive with Kyren Williams (RB11) and RJ Harvey (RB22) ready to step up. The strategic drafting of RJ Harvey and Dak

Prescott brought tremendous value to the team, while the small stack bonus of Prescott and Lamb enhances their scoring potential. With such depth and skill across the board, Jacksons Lambs are primed for an outstanding season, eager to showcase their talent and secure top honors.
