Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, the schu1tzy team is poised to dazzle—just not in the way they'd hoped. With their recent Herculean achievements of finishing in the 6th percentile for scoring and winning 25% of their 2024 games, they have outdone themselves by aspiring to scale the dizzying heights of the 12th percentile this year. In a testament to their strategic genius, they've managed to snatch Derrick Henry as their first-round pick, leaving their rivals in astonished silence as they reached for him like a toddler grabbing at candy just beyond their reach. Their running back lineup boasts legends like Quinshon Judkins and Breece Hall, while Jaydon Blue tantalizingly teeters on the brink of mediocrity, lending an uncanny balance to their backfield. Meanwhile, with wide receivers ranked 9th in the division, Travis Hunter and DeVonta Smith will surely keep opponents guessing which version will show up each week. The masterstroke of drafting Patrick Mahomes a full round later than his ADP might give schu1tzy fans a glimmer of hope, but Mason Taylor's premature selection serves as a reminder that sometimes reaching for greatness means missing the mark entirely. In the Charlotte Checkers division, where finishing dead last is but a mere formality, this could be yet another enchanting year of near triumphs and gallant defeats for team schu1tzy.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms over coachretzlaff1 like a mocking shadow, this team finds itself in the unenviable position of hoping that last year's burst of success wasn't just a fluke. Despite a Cinderella story in 2024 with a strong finish in the top third, this year our protagonists are struggling with the dissonance of ranking 11th in the division and languishing in the 17th percentile overall. Their running back stable is the envy of absolutely nobody, except perhaps those who enjoy collecting athletes like fine wines, boasting big names like Bijan Robinson, Jonathan Taylor, and Omarion Hampton. Yet, in their infinite wisdom, they've decided to start Bhayshul Tuten, ranked 45th and proving that sometimes less is truly more—less points, that is. Meanwhile, the wide receiver lineup promises to deliver all the excitement of a lukewarm cup of tea, headlined by Tetairoa

McMillan and Calvin Ridley, who are sure to thrill fans with their breathtaking mediocrity. With an average starter age of 24.6, coachretzlaff1 represents the awkward teenage years of fantasy football teams, bursting with potential but still plagued with questionable decisions, like reaching miles ahead of ADP for players who were likely hoping for less responsibility. So as this motley crew takes the field, one can only marvel at the audacity of optimism in the face of such statistical improbability.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, Team JSargent seems to be caught in a perplexing time warp, futilely clinging to the glories of their dominant 2024 run. Having basked in the lofty heights of a 95th percentile finish last year, this season they seem destined for far less dazzling company. With a quarterback lineup that boasts Matthew Stafford at the impressive rank of QB25 and J.J. McCarthy as the pride of QB16, it's clear that JSargent's strategy is to snatch victory from the jaws of total quarterback mediocrity. Despite possessing a stacked wide receiver corps led by Puka Nacua and featuring a motley crew of mid-tier talent, the inclusion of Keon Coleman as a projected starter whispers tales of desperation. Their running back stable bolsters some hope with Saquon Barkley still likely to carry the team on his broad, injury-prone shoulders, but one can't help but notice the shaky foundations built on reaching early for Jonnu Smith. It's comforting to know, however, that they managed to snag Matthew Stafford at such a "bargain." Let's not forget the inspired decision to select J.J. McCarthy earlier than necessary, surely securing their path to an enviable 10th place in their division and a cozy 26th percentile standing, where they can reminisce fondly about their golden days.

In the kaleidoscopic whirl of 2025's fantasy football season, Team mikeiliu finds itself in a curious conundrum—a peculiar blend of tight end opulence and quarterback modesty. With last year's 77th percentile glory fading into a distant memory like a forgotten dream about dancing penguins, this year they meander in the 32nd percentile, snugly nestled just above the abyss. Their division rank hovers at a mystical 9, as if caught in an eternal limbo between mediocrity and the gates of triumph. The team's strategy seems to hinge on an enigmatic collective of tight ends, assembling a veritable fortress of unrivaled talent with stalwarts such as Brock Bowers, George Kittle, and the ageless Travis Kelce leading the charge. Meanwhile, Hunter Henry, the proverbial feather in their cap —or perhaps the weak link in the chain—holds the key to their fate, his performance as vital as a juggling flamingo at a circus. In the land of quarterbacks, Jordan Love and Dak Prescott form a duo as delightfully unpredictable as a pair of cats deciding whether or not to nap in the sunbeam of success. Despite acquiring Dak Prescott at a serendipitous round, their aerial attack remains as tentative as a hesitant squirrel contemplating a leap to the next branch. Meanwhile, the running back contingent stands in respectable stead, with Kyren Williams, Kenneth Walker III, and James Conner ready to plow through defenses like hungry hippos at a buffet. However, it is their penchant for drafting mystery that adds a dash of intrigue to their tale. Jerome Ford and George Kittle, snatched earlier than expected, raise eyebrows like a magician pulling rabbits from hats, leaving the audience to wonder whether they are witnessing brilliance or folly. As the season unfolds, Team mikeiliu prepares to navigate an absurdist odyssey where strategy takes a back seat to spectacle, and victory may be decided by whatever whimsical fate Hunter Henry decides to bestow upon his followers.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, thedukecrusher is looking to improve on last year's performance and climb the ranks both in their division and overall standings. With a current ranking of 8th in the division and sitting in the 33rd percentile overall, there's room for growth. Key strengths lie in the impressive stable of running backs, featuring De'Von Achane and Josh Jacobs, who are poised to drive the team's success. While the wide receiver lineup is not as strong, with Cooper Kupp and Wan'Dale Robinson facing challenges, the tight end position shines brightly in this TE Premium setup, thanks to Trey McBride. Zach Ertz will play a crucial role as a projected starter, despite being potentially the weakest link. The team made astute decisions in the draft, securing great value with Brock Purdy, though reaching for players like Travis Etienne could impact roster depth. After finishing below average last season, thedukecrusher is determined to leverage their strong positional players to make a significant push toward a better finish in 2025.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, CKutzerFF enters with cautious optimism, aiming to build on a challenging previous season. Last year, they struggled with scoring and game-winning percentages, but this year, there's potential for improvement. Ranked seventh in their division, CKutzerFF finds themselves in a competitive yet hopeful mix. Their wide receiver corps stands out as one of the team's strongest assets, featuring talents like Drake London and Tyreek Hill, both expected to be key contributors. D.J. Moore and DK Metcalf add depth to this promising lineup, while Khalil Shakir and Ricky Pearsall offer intriguing potential. However, CKutzerFF's running back situation presents a bit of uncertainty. Christian McCaffrey remains a high-caliber player, but Najee Harris will need to perform beyond expectations to elevate the team's overall prospects. The backfield's performance could play a critical role in determining success this season. The team made some strategic draft decisions, notably securing Joe Burrow significantly later than his average draft position, potentially providing a pivotal edge in quarterback play. As CKutzerFF navigates the complexities of the 2025 season, their strategy and player performances will be essential in climbing both the division rankings and making a more significant impact overall.

The 2025 season for GUMP7285 promises to be a delightful carnival of football absurdities, with the team's fortunes hanging in a delicate balance between triumph and calamity. While last year's escapades saw them prancing through the fields of fantasy glory with all the grace of a caffeinated gazelle, this season they find themselves perched precariously in the middle of their league, like a flamingo trying to ice skate. Their wide receiver brigade, led by the indomitable Malik Nabers and the crafty Ladd McConkey, has fashioned itself into a symphony of catch-and-run that would make even a squirrel juggling acorns look pedestrian. However, lurking in the shadows is the enigmatic Brandon Aiyuk, whose role as both a starter and a potential Achilles' heel parallels that of a juggler who occasionally sets his own pants on fire. The running back trio, with Jahmyr Gibbs leading the way, performs like a marching band that occasionally forgets the tune, while Kyle Pitts contemplates the existential quandaries of being the TE17 in a world where tight ends are expected to be less philosophical and more productive. With an average starter age suggesting a choir of cherubic youths, GUMP7285 is poised to waltz through the season like a young tortoise at a salsa class, full of potential but occasionally out of step. Their draft day gambles on players like Cam Ward and Shedeur Sanders hint at a whimsical strategy, as if choosing players based on their ability to recite haikus rather than their on-field prowess. As they navigate a league filled with teams vying for supremacy, GUMP7285's journey promises to be an epic tale of unpredictability, where expectations are tossed into the air like confetti, only to land artfully where they may—or may not—belong.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, team jkdaly is poised to make a notable impact. With a solid position in their division and a respectable percentile ranking overall, they're well-positioned to improve upon last year's average finish. The team's quarterback lineup is particularly strong, led by the dynamic Lamar Jackson, who was a savvy draft pick, chosen slightly later than expected. Complementing him are Kyler Murray and Geno Smith, both capable of delivering strong performances. While J.K. Dobbins is a key piece to watch, especially given his crucial role as a projected starter, his performance could very well be the linchpin for the team's success this year. The wide receiver group, featuring CeeDee Lamb, Rashee Rice, and Chris Olave, represents a blend of top-tier talent and promising potential. Despite an early reach for Rashee Rice, his presence is expected to bolster the receiving corps significantly. The addition of Matthew Golden adds further depth, enhancing the team's passing game options. While some players were drafted slightly earlier than expected, jkdaly balanced their roster with great value picks, like Geno Smith and James Cook. If the team can capitalize on these strategic selections and if their players perform up to potential, particularly Dobbins, there's every reason to be optimistic about jkdaly's chances of climbing the ranks this season.

The GarrettBFF team is poised for an exciting 2025 fantasy football season, stepping into the arena with a renewed sense of energy and determination. With a commanding backfield led by Ashton Jeanty, Bucky Irving, and Chase Brown, the team boasts one of the most formidable running attacks in the league, ready to trample over defenses week after week. Despite last year's struggles, landing at just the 24th percentile and winning only 36% of games, this squad has made key strategic moves that promise to revitalize their fortunes. Drafting Baker Mayfield and Aaron Rodgers later than expected could be a masterstroke, offering significant upside at a crucial position. Meanwhile, Jake Ferguson stands as a pivotal figure in the team's quest for glory; his performance as a starter could very well tip the scales in their favor. While the wide receiver corps, featuring A.J.

Brown and Mike Evans, needs to step up, the stack bonus from pairing Evans with Mayfield hints at explosive possibilities. Positioned at fourth in the Charlotte Checkers division and on the rise, GarrettBFF is set to defy expectations and transform this season into a triumphant journey.

As WeapwnX20 gears up for the 2025 fantasy football season, optimism is in the air as they aim to build on last year's average performance. Positioned in a promising spot within the competitive Charlotte Checkers division, they boast one of the strongest quarterback lineups with Jayden Daniels and Jalen Hurts leading the charge. Their tactical decision-making shines through with the selection of Sam Darnold, whose draft value could turn out to be a savvy move. While their running backs might not be the most formidable, the team's tight ends are poised to deliver powerful performances, especially with T.J. Hockenson and Sam LaPorta ready to exploit the TE premium setup. The wide receiver group, led by Brian Thomas Jr. and Terry McLaurin, holds potential to excel and provide crucial points, while Emeka Egbuka has an opportunity to surprise as he strives to elevate his game. As they enter the new season, WeapwnX20 is well-positioned to continue climbing the ranks, leveraging their strengths and strategic player combinations to make a significant impact in both their division and overall standings.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, team boss2274 is poised for another competitive run. Following a remarkable 2024 performance, where they secured a spot in the upper echelons with a 94th percentile finish and a commanding 75% win rate, they're ready to build on that success. While quarterback play remains an area of focus, with Tua Tagovailoa and Michael Penix Jr. both eager to prove they can outperform their rankings, the team's strength lies in its exceptional wide receiver lineup. With stars like Ja'Marr Chase and Amon-Ra St. Brown leading the charge, alongside solid contributors such as Davante Adams and Chris Godwin, boss2274 boasts the most formidable receiving corps in the Charlotte Checkers division. Although the tight end position may pose challenges, strategic drafting has ensured value across the board, setting up a balanced roster capable of making an impact. As boss2274 enters the season ranked second in their division and in the 69th percentile overall, fans and competitors alike should keep an eye on their potential to surprise and succeed once again.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Team Jordan_Woodson is riding high on the momentum of a stellar 2024 campaign. Starting this season at the top of their division and sitting comfortably in the 98th percentile overall, they are primed for another standout performance. With powerhouse quarterbacks Josh Allen and Justin Herbert commanding the field, the team boasts a formidable aerial attack. Their wide receiver corps is nothing short of elite, featuring the likes of Justin Jefferson and Nico Collins, complemented by the dynamic Tee Higgins and the ever-reliable Marvin Harrison Jr. Even though Jayden Reed might be one of the weaker starters in the lineup, his potential to surprise adds a layer of excitement. The team has also shown impressive strategic acumen by securing incredible value picks, particularly with Justin Herbert and Kyle Williams far exceeding their expected draft positions. While the running back situation isn't as strong, the savvy acquisition of Joe Mixon late in the draft could prove pivotal. Coming off a 69th percentile finish last year, this team looks not only to replicate their success but to push the boundaries even further, setting the stage for what promises to be an exhilarating season.
