Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

Ah, the EvoHammerDrew fantasy saga continues into 2025 with all the grace of a three-legged racehorse. After last year's impressive showing, they've evidently decided to embrace the age-old strategy of setting the bar low for dramatic improvement. With a quarterback lineup that could best be described as "adventurous" and a wide receiver corps headlined by Michael Pittman, who, at WR48, seems more suited for a game of hide-and-seek than football, their standings in both league and tournament are less than inspiring. Their strategy appears to involve tight ends doing the heavy lifting—literally, as Travis Kelce, David Njoku, and Jonnu Smith will be carrying this team on their broad shoulders. As for the draft, it seems EvoHammerDrew took a "go-big-or-go-home" approach: reaching for players like De'Von Achane and Kendre Miller as if they were on a personal mission to redefine the concept of draft value. Meanwhile, in their division, they're holding down that coveted twelfth spot with an iron grip. So here's to EvoHammerDrew, proving once and for all that you can't win 'em all—especially when you're ranked in the illustrious first percentile.

As FFQueenB bravely embarks on their 2025 fantasy football odyssey, one can't help but admire their audacious strategy of defying logic and common sense. Fresh off a dazzling 2024 campaign that left them basking in the upper echelons of mediocrity, this year's team seems more like an avant-garde art installation than a competitive roster. With quarterbacks like Josh Allen valiantly attempting to carry the entire team on his back, FFQueenB's hopes rest on the paper-thin shoulders of a wide receiver corps led by the ever-so-intimidating Rashee Rice. Meanwhile, the tight ends are poised to perform the Herculean task of offsetting the backfield wonders of Bhayshul Tuten, whose presence on the field is akin to a gentle breeze — barely noticeable yet somewhat refreshing in its effort. Reaching aggressively for Chase Brown has already made waves, as FFQueenB appears determined to lead the league in questionable draft decisions. As they confidently settle into their cozy 10th place division den and luxuriate in the lower 17th percentile overall, FFQueenB's season promises to be a theatrical display of uncharted strategies and, perhaps, a case study for future cautionary tales.

As the Brockness Monster lumbers into the 2025 fantasy football season, one might wonder if this once-middling behemoth has finally decided to embrace the obscurity of its 11th-place division rank, all while floundering comfortably in the 17th percentile overall. Despite a respectable performance in 2024's fantasy escapades, the team now relies heavily on Lamar Jackson's heroic QB1 efforts to patch over the gaping holes left by the likes of Brandon Aiyuk, whose WR50 status should be filed under "send help." Meanwhile, Sam LaPorta and Dalton Kincaid valiantly attempt to elevate the squad with their commendable tight end performances, but even they seem doomed to be overshadowed by curious draft choices. Reaching for Sam LaPorta might have earned some head-scratches, but it's the premature faith placed in DeAndre Hopkins and Dontayvion Wicks that might truly complete this comedy of errors. Who needs alignment with ADP when you can thrill in the relentless pursuit of mediocrity and watch Jordan Love cling desperately to the promise of value drafted? The Brockness Monster trudges on, seemingly content to snatch defeat from the jaws of fantasy glory.

TE: Kyle Pitts (TE17 | $2 | 12.12)

As the 2025 season looms for JonathonGoad, the shadows of last year's dismal performance linger heavily. With a current division rank of 9 and sitting in the 27th percentile overall, it's hard to muster optimism. The team is desperate to claw its way out of the depths of 2024's forgettable 6th percentile scoring finish—a year marked by winning just a quarter of their matchups. The fate of the season seems precariously balanced on the shoulders of Cam Ward, the quarterback whose ranking at 23 suggests more struggles ahead than triumphs. While the wide receiving corps boasts some promise with Justin Jefferson leading the charge, the tight end situation remains tenuous at best, with Kyle Pitts lagging behind expectations at TE17. Despite securing Patrick Mahomes later than expected and Tre Harris as potential hidden gems, the team's gamble on Derrick Henry and Calvin

Ridley earlier than consensus could cost them dearly. Cooper Kupp's early pick only adds to the uncertainty. As they brace for the gauntlet ahead, JonathonGoad finds itself on the precipice of another challenging season, hoping to defy the odds stacked so heavily against them.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, theandrewnorton finds itself in a middle-of-the-pack position, eager to improve upon last year's below-average finish. Ranked 8th in the division and sitting in the 39th percentile overall, this team's journey could go either way. Their strong stable of running backs, featuring Christian McCaffrey and Breece Hall, gives them a formidable ground game, poised to carry much of the load. However, the quarterback situation remains a concern, with Dak Prescott leading the charge but the season largely hinging on Geno Smith's performance as a starter. The wide receiver corps, led by CeeDee Lamb and potential breakout star Travis Hunter, offers glimpses of promise and could provide the needed lift if they manage to capitalize on favorable matchups. Despite reaching for Geno Smith in the draft, the team's adept maneuvering with other picks, like securing CeeDee Lamb and Travis Hunter beyond their expected range, could pay dividends. With the Prescott-Lamb connection offering occasional sparks, the path to success will require consistent performances across the board, especially from key figures who can tilt the scales in critical matchups. As they navigate a fiercely competitive landscape, theandrewnorton's resilience and strategic adaptability will be put to the test, aiming to defy the odds and climb the ranks.

In the year 2025, the fantasy football world is abuzz with the peculiar saga of cory78, whose journey through the gridiron labyrinth has become a tale of epic absurdity. Their season began with the audacious expectation of defying the cosmic dance of probability, having emerged from the previous year like a phoenix from a quagmire, or perhaps more like a dodo from a slightly damp patch of grass. Ranking comfortably in the mid-echelons of their division, the Charlotte Knights, and hovering around the median in their expansive quest for glory, cory78's strategy hinges on a cavalcade of running backs that could charge through chaos itself. With Saquon Barkley leading the stampede, one might think the team was assembling a brigade for a mythical campaign rather than a football season. Meanwhile, their wide receivers, Tee Higgins and Rome Odunze, have taken up the existential challenge of catching metaphorical clouds in a bottle, adding an element of mystery to every yard gained. The enigmatic Jake Ferguson stands as both a linchpin and paradox, his contributions pivotal yet puzzling, like a key that sometimes fits the lock and sometimes turns into a rubber chicken. In a brilliant stroke of strategic foresight, Trevor Lawrence, Nick Chubb, and others were procured at delightfully unexpected junctures, proving that timing is everything, except when it's not. As cory78 marches onward, they dance upon the precipice of victory, where each game is a surreal performance of calculated whimsy, a tapestry woven from the threads of potential and the occasional wayward balloon animal.

As the 2025 season kicks off, ColbyConway is poised to build on last year's dominant performance. Riding high from a stellar 2024 campaign with a 96th percentile finish and an 89% winning rate, the team is well-positioned for another competitive year. With Jalen Hurts leading the charge at QB4, supported by the promising J.J. McCarthy at QB16 and Bryce Young at QB22, the quarterback room looks strong and poised to drive success. The tight end duo of Trey McBride and Evan Engram, arguably the strongest in their division, ensures a consistent stream of points in this TE premium setup. While the running back situation might appear concerning, with Tyjae Spears playing a pivotal role despite being ranked RB41, the team's wide receiver corps led by A.J. Brown, Marvin Harrison Jr., and Davante Adams brings both experience and firepower. With strategic draft decisions, such as securing great value in players like Marvin Harrison Jr., the team has skillfully balanced its roster to compete effectively. The stack bonus from pairing A.J. Brown with Jalen Hurts adds an extra layer of excitement, making ColbyConway a team to watch as they aim to climb both divisional and overall rankings this season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, team kipahisbush is poised for an exciting year with a promising blend of youthful energy and strategic drafting. After a challenging 2024 season, where they struggled to find their footing, kipahisbush has retooled and now boasts the strongest wide receiver lineup in their division. Led by the dynamic Ja'Marr Chase, currently the top-ranked wide receiver, and supported by Tetairoa McMillan and Ladd McConkey, the team's aerial attack is set to be a formidable threat. The backfield, while not as dominant, is anchored by Bucky Irving, with D'Andre Swift and Najee Harris contributing depth and potential breakout performances. Their strategic acquisitions, such as Bo Nix and Tetairoa McMillan, have positioned them well above their draft value, adding to the team's competitive edge. With an average starter age of just 24.6, kipahisbush is one of the younger teams competing, bringing a fresh and agile approach to the field. As they enter the new season ranked fifth in their division and within the top quartile overall, there's a palpable sense of optimism that this could be the year they not only improve on the previous season's struggles but also make a significant impact in both their division and the broader competition.

As kartn43 gears up for the 2025 fantasy football season, anticipation and excitement are in the air. Building on a stellar performance in 2024, where they finished in the impressive 84th percentile with a commendable 72% winning rate, this team is poised to make waves once more. Armed with a dynamic running back lineup featuring the unstoppable Bijan Robinson, ranked as the premier RB1, alongside versatile contributors like RJ Harvey, James Cook, and Brian Robinson, their ground game promises to be formidable. Though tight ends may pose a slight concern, the strength of their backfield more than compensates. Trey Benson, while considered a pivotal starter, is projected to play a crucial role despite being the weakest link among the backs. The youthful exuberance of this squad, with an average starter age of just 24.7 years, injects an energetic edge into their play. In the wide receiver department, Nico Collins and Garrett Wilson lead the charge, supported by promising talents like Jameson Williams and Matthew Golden. Savvy draft picks such as Baker Mayfield and C.J. Stroud, secured at great value, add depth and strategic advantage, particularly with the bonus of the Collins-Stroud connection. Despite a few reaches, including the ambitious pick of Wan'Dale Robinson, kartn43's tactics could very well propel them to climb both their divisional ranks and overall standings. This season, kartn43 is a team to watch, ready to surprise and excel in the competitive landscape.

As the 2025 fantasy football season unfurls its promising tapestry, gomikego emerges with aspirations as grand as the stadiums they dream of conquering. Building upon the lessons of a middling 2024 performance, where they settled into a humble 44 percentile in scoring, gomikego has evolved into a powerhouse contender that now stands proudly in the upper echelons of competition, boasting a tournament ranking in the dazzling 82nd percentile. This meteoric rise is punctuated by their impressive third-place standing within the fiercely competitive Charlotte Knights division, where every matchup demands strategic brilliance and unwavering resolve. Key to this resurgence is their formidable receiving corps, which, despite the presence of Ricky Pearsall (WR42) as one of the team's more modest projected starters, shines brightly with stars like Puka Nacua (WR5) leading the charge, flanked by the explosive Tyreek Hill (WR17) and the dynamic Jerry Jeudy (WR32). These wideouts, alongside the seasoned prowess of Stefon Diggs (WR44), form a vanguard that promises to dazzle and dominate. The team's shrewd draft maneuvers have also contributed significantly to their ascent, with acquisitions such as Ricky Pearsall and Roschon Johnson being secured well after their anticipated draft positions, showcasing a keen eye for value and potential. As the season unfolds, gomikego is poised to not just compete but to inspire and astonish, riding a wave of momentum that could very well carry them to unprecedented heights, where dreams are not just dreamt but realized amid the roar of adulation and the thrill of victory.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Nobleg711 is poised for a remarkable turnaround. Following a challenging 2024, the team took bold strategic steps in the draft, landing exceptional value picks that have already elevated them to an impressive second place in their division and the 89th percentile overall. With a dynamic duo of tight ends led by Brock Bowers, ranked as the top TE, and supported by veteran Zach Ertz, Nobleg711 leverages the TE Premium setup to its advantage. The wide receiver corps, featuring talents like Malik Nabers and D.J. Moore, promises to be a formidable force, despite its division rank. The strategic addition of Joe Burrow, acquired well below his ADP, alongside Jared Goff and Michael Penix Jr., gives the team a solid quarterback foundation.

This savvy drafting approach, combined with a resilient spirit, sets the stage for Nobleg711 to rewrite their story and make a significant impact this season. With electrifying potential and strategic depth, Nobleg711 is ready to soar to new heights and take on all challengers.
