Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms on the horizon, the footballdiehard team gears up for a challenging journey ahead. Following an average 2024 performance that saw them finish in the middle of the pack, the team finds itself at the bottom of the division and struggling overall among nearly 5,000 competitors. This weary roster leans heavily on its running back strength, with De'Von Achane and Derrick Henry leading the charge, but the cracks begin to show in the wide receiver and quarterback positions. Michael Pittman anchors a thin receiving corps, while Austin Ekeler, though a starter, seems poised to underwhelm among stronger peers. Despite these challenges, the team finds some solace in its tight ends, with George Kittle and Evan Engram offering a glimmer of hope in this TE Premium setup. Value picks like Jared Goff and Trevor Lawrence provide some optimism at quarterback, but the team's reach on players like D'Andre Swift and J.K. Dobbins leaves much to be desired. As footballdiehard embarks on this daunting season, they'll need every bit of grit and determination to climb the ranks and make a mark in both their division and the broader competition.

TE: Mike Gesicki (TE22 | $1 | 13.09), Juwan Johnson (TE31 | $0 | 18.04)

As the 2025 season looms, amerika108 finds itself in a precarious position, barely clinging to hopes of improving on their middling performance from last year. Competing in a division named Dallas Cowboys, their current ranking at 11th paints a grim picture, while their overall standing in the 8th percentile of the tournament suggests an uphill battle. While their quarterbacks, led by the dynamic duo of Josh Allen and Caleb Williams, offer a glimmer of hope, the glaring deficiencies elsewhere cast a long shadow over the team's prospects. At tight end, Mike Gesicki's lackluster ranking signals potential trouble, and with Jayden Higgins, the weakest starter at wide receiver, questions abound regarding their depth and consistency. The decision to overreach on players like Jack Bech and even Rashee Rice indicates a strategy gone awry, potentially leaving them vulnerable in critical matchups. Although there was some savvy drafting of Brian Robinson that offered value, it seems like a solitary beacon in an otherwise troubled roster. As the season unfolds, amerika108 must face the reality of competing against more cohesive and strategically sound teams, hoping to defy the odds stacked against them.

As the 2025 season approaches, the Western Spartans find themselves teetering on the edge of irrelevance, much like a once-vibrant empire now facing decay. Their heady successes of 2024, anchored by a laudable 76th percentile finish, seem but a hazy memory as they approach the new campaign with anxiety rather than anticipation. With a tournament rank languishing in the dismal 9th percentile and a division standing at a bleak 10th, hope seems scarce. The once-promising youth of this squad, with an average age pinned at 24.3, is overshadowed by glaring weaknesses at quarterback, where Cam Ward and Bryce Young trail woefully behind their peers. The running back corps offers little solace, ranking 8th in the division, while notable reaches for players like Bucky

Irving and Travis Hunter have only compounded the team's woes. Even the bright spots—Justin Jefferson's brilliance and a solid tight end duo in Sam LaPorta and Mark Andrews—feel like whispers of past glories rather than harbingers of future success. Once buoyed by dreams of ascending the ranks, the Western Spartans now face the looming season with a pall of resignation, their aspirations cruelly tempered by the stark realities of their shortcomings.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, Jerrys Jawns are all set to wow us with their meteoric fall from grace. Fresh off a 2024 season where they soared in the 98th percentile and boasted a winning percentage that had rivals quaking, they've taken a curious approach for 2025: mediocrity with style. Ranked 9th in the Dallas Cowboys division, it appears as though Jerry's scoff-worthy strategy of reaching early on "must-have" talents like Zach Ertz and Tyler Conklin is paying off precisely as one might predict—disastrously. While Saquon Barkley and his merry band of running backs are still pretending they're worth more than a bag of beans, Rachaad White stands as the spine-tingling, all-important weak link that could either sink or barely keep this ship afloat. The receivers, if you can even call them that, are less of a supporting cast and more of a comedy troupe, leaving our quarterbacks Justin Fields and Anthony Richardson (the latter a rare example of drafting sanity) to perform miracles with minimal divine intervention. Perhaps the only bright spot in this parade of disappointment is their tight end trio, but even that won't save Jerrys Jawns from languishing in the 19th percentile overall, where they'll likely spend the season contemplating what could have been if they'd only paid attention during draft day.

TE: Kyle Pitts (S) (TE17 | $2 | 11.12), Chigoziem Okonkwo (TE26 | $0 | 13.12)

As the 2025 fantasy season kicks off, NinjaChickens21 gears up to dazzle us with yet another brilliantly mediocre performance. Fresh off last year's resounding thud in the 36th percentile, they're poised to rocket into the slightly less embarrassing 28th percentile, proving that consistency is key—especially when it involves underwhelming expectations. With a running back lineup that could make even the Dallas Cowboys' coaches weep, featuring Bijan Robinson leading the charge and cohorts like Kenneth Walker III and James Cook eagerly waiting for the call, you might think they could sprint their way to glory. Alas, the wide receiver and tight end corps seem intent on ensuring any such fantasies remain firmly in the realm of fiction. Jerry Jeudy and Jakobi Meyers, those paragons of adequacy, will likely spend the season practicing the fine art of invisibility. Meanwhile, Kyle Pitts, TE17, holds the team's hopes in his presumably butter-coated hands. Perhaps their youthful exuberance, with an average age of a mere 24.7 years, will inject some spice into their otherwise bland recipe—though it's likely to be more jalapeño jelly than Sriracha. They managed to snag some great values like Blake Corum and Sam Darnold well after everyone stopped caring about ADP, which is kind of like winning a lottery for $5. On the flip side, they reached for a few gems such as Jaydon Blue and Tyler Allgeier, whose early selection has left analysts scratching their heads. So, as NinjaChickens21 charges into the fray, remember: it's not about the destination, but the gloriously awkward journey to middle-of-the-pack anonymity.

As the 2025 season dawns, Not So Bland is poised to dazzle with their quirky mix of talent and strategy. Sitting comfortably in the middle of their division, they are ready to overcome last year's lackluster performance. The tight end duo of Brock Bowers and Jake Ferguson promises to be a formidable fortress, ready to catch anything thrown their way. On the flip side, the team's running game might need some jet fuel, with Omarion Hampton and Ray Davis hoping to outrun any sneaky turtles crossing their path. Keon Coleman, the intangible wild card, could either sparkle like a diamond or fizzle like yesterday's soda—his performance might just be the key to lifting the team's rank to new heights. Meanwhile, Rashid Shaheed's early draft selection raised eyebrows, but perhaps he's been saving his magic just for this moment. As they march into the grand tourney and their division battles, Not So Bland dreams of leaping from their current percentile into new realms, all while hoping that Mahomes and Worthy form a duo that even the fiercest opponents will fear. Will they pull off a dazzling upset, or will their journey be more akin to a rollercoaster ride with sudden drops and unexpected turns? Grab your popcorn; it's going to be a whimsically unpredictable season!

With a promising mix of talent, they enter the scene with renewed determination, currently sitting comfortably in the middle of the rankings. Their quarterback lineup, featuring Jayden Daniels and Justin Herbert, stands out as a formidable force, setting a high bar for offensive plays. The tight end trio of Trey McBride, Jonnu Smith, and Hunter Henry promises to be a game-changer in this TE Premium setup, providing crucial support in key moments. Wide receivers Garrett Wilson, D.J. Moore, and Jameson Williams are expected to play pivotal roles in driving the team's success, while Darnell Mooney's performance will be closely watched as a potential turning point. The strategic drafting choices have positioned ScottBill favorably, offering value in unexpected places. With an eye on climbing the ranks, both within their division and beyond, this season holds the excitement of new opportunities and the potential for ScottBill to make a significant impact.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, team sutterkeely stands poised to embark on a journey of epic proportions. Following their dominant 2024 campaign, where they dazzled with a meteoric rise to a 92nd percentile finish and an impressive 78% win rate, the stage is set for another thrilling ride. This year, sutterkeely's constellation of wide receivers shines brightly as one of the most formidable in their division. Puka Nacua, anchoring the unit at WR5, glimmers alongside Nico Collins at WR7, while the electrifying Tyreek Hill at WR17 and the dependable Terry McLaurin at WR19 provide a potent mix of speed and reliability. As the team's enigmatic edge, Ricky Pearsall, WR42, enters the fray not just as a projected starter but a pivotal piece whose performance could tip the scales in their favor. The backfield, though ranked 9th in division strength, finds hope in Ashton Jeanty, RB4, a powerhouse with the might to break through defenses. Notably, sutterkeely has proven masterful in navigating the draft, securing incredible value with strategic selections like C.J. Stroud and Tua Tagovailoa, while crafting subtle synergies with the pairing of Nico Collins and Stroud. Despite their current standing in the 81st percentile and 5th place division ranking, the winds of potential whisper of a season where sutterkeely could ascend even higher, weaving a saga of triumph that will echo through the annals of fantasy football glory.

TE: Mason Taylor (TE23 | $0 | 13.05)

As the 2025 season dawns upon the fantasy realm, the team known as brucewayne0305 stands poised on the precipice of potential greatness, ready to unleash their strategic prowess on the field. Rising from a challenging 2024 campaign where they found themselves mired in the shadows of mediocrity, finishing in the 34th percentile, this indomitable squad has meticulously refined their arsenal, now boasting a fiery 83rd percentile standing. Anchored by the steadfast Jalen Hurts, the fourth-ranked quarterback whose electric playmaking abilities command respect, and flanked by Dak Prescott and Matthew Stafford, whose value pick status provides depth and flexibility, the team's offensive engine is primed for ignition. Their wide receiver corps, adorned with the likes of Drake London, Davante Adams, and DeVonta Smith, forms a formidable aerial assault, promising to rain touchdowns upon adversaries with relentless precision. Yet, the unfolding saga of Cooper Kupp, placed at WR46, remains a compelling subplot, a narrative thread that could weave triumph or tribulation into their journey. With whispers of his resurgence echoing in the corridors of fantasy circles, his performance will undoubtedly be the linchpin upon which many victories hinge. Meanwhile, the shrewd draft strategy, yielding spectacular late-round gems such as Matthew Stafford and Khalil Shakir, contrasts with a slight gamble on tight end Mason Taylor, whose earlier-than-expected selection may yet prove prophetic. As they navigate the tumultuous waters of their division named Dallas Cowboys, where they hold a formidable fourth rank, brucewayne0305 is engineered to shatter expectations, marching forward with a stack bonus synergy between Hurts and Smith that promises explosive synergy. This season, they are not merely participants; they are architects of destiny, sculptors of their own legendary legacy in the annals of fantasy football.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, swankymars33 is poised for another electrifying year, building on last season's remarkable performance that saw them finishing in the elite 98th percentile and boasting a 69% winning record. With a current standing of third in their division and within the top 91 percentile overall, this team is a formidable contender. The strength of swankymars33 lies in its powerhouse running back lineup, featuring top talents like Jonathan Taylor (RB9) and Alvin Kamara (RB14), supported by a deep bench including David Montgomery (RB28) and Tony Pollard (RB25). Not to be overshadowed, their tight end corps is exceptional in this TE Premium setup, headlined by Travis Kelce (TE5) and Tyler Warren (TE10). While Najee Harris (RB36) may appear a weaker starter, he is a savvy pick obtained with great value, much like Jerome Ford.

However, it is the astounding value snagged with Joe Burrow at quarterback that truly elevates this team, particularly when combined with top wide receiver Ja'Marr Chase (WR1) for an explosive stack bonus. Swankymars33 has crafted a roster capable of taking on any challenge, with strategic drafting and roster depth that ensures their relevance and competitiveness throughout the season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, Tap Into Fantasy stands poised on the precipice of greatness. With a commanding presence in both their league and broader competition, they have orchestrated a campaign that has already garnered awe and envy from their rivals. Leading the charge is the electrifying Lamar Jackson, captured at a value that speaks to the strategic acumen of the team's management. Flanking him are the dynamic Bo Nix and the ever-reliable Jordan Love, forming an aerial assault unmatched in their division. At wide receiver, CeeDee Lamb shines as a beacon of brilliance, supported by an armada of talent including Brian Thomas Jr., Tee Higgins, and the indomitable Mike Evans, who despite whispers of being past his prime, was secured at a strategic juncture to reinforce the team's offensive arsenal. Matthew Golden and DK Metcalf add layers of depth, while Jauan Jennings provides an underrated edge, creating a receiving corps that rivals any in the league. While the running back stable, led by Trey Benson and Isaac Guerendo, may not boast the same flash, their gritty determination and untapped potential offer intriguing upside. The team's ability to secure Jarquez Hunter well below his anticipated draft position further exemplifies their shrewdness. Though reaching for Terrance Ferguson might raise some eyebrows, the belief in his potential signifies a bold confidence characteristic of champions. As the season unfolds, Tap Into Fantasy stands ready to stride boldly into the annals of fantasy football legend, their sights set firmly on ascending to unassailable heights.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Stephmiller40 is poised for an exhilarating run, having ascended to the apex of their division and securing an enviable position in the top percentile overall. This team has transformed from last year's middling performance into a powerhouse, thanks in large part to an electrifying cadre of wide receivers. Headlined by the prodigious Malik Nabers and supported by the likes of A.J. Brown and Ladd McConkey, this ensemble brings exceptional depth and firepower to the field. The strategic late-round acquisitions of Marvin Harrison Jr. and Jordan Addison have added layers of dynamic playmaking ability, while the shrewd draft strategy that saw A.J. Brown fall into their lap has fortified their roster even further. Though they face challenges at quarterback with Michael Penix Jr., his value as a late pickup cannot be overlooked. The backfield, led by Jahmyr Gibbs, provides solid support, and the youthful vibrancy of the squad, with an average age just shy of 25, promises both energy and longevity. While tight end Colston Loveland is an area of potential concern, the overall composition of the team suggests a thrilling and successful season ahead. Stephmiller40's blend of emerging talent and veteran prowess sets the stage for what could be a legendary campaign.
