Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

The 2025 season looks bleak for veryrareAP, as they find themselves languishing at the bottom of their division and in the depths of the overall standings. Despite boasting a formidable quarterback duo with Lamar Jackson and Trevor Lawrence, the team is hampered by a feeble running back corps. Omarion Hampton, Jaydon Blue, and Jordan Mason struggle to provide the necessary ground support, placing an undue burden on their potent wide receiver lineup. The receiving crew, led by Brian Thomas Jr., Terry McLaurin, and DK Metcalf, offers a glimmer of hope but might not be enough to lift the team from their dismal standing. While shrewd draft choices like Jaydon Blue and Theo Johnson offered some roster value, the early picks of players such as Rico Dowdle, Brian Thomas Jr., and Terry McLaurin suggest a desperation that hasn't paid off. With this unbalanced roster, veryrareAP confronts an uphill battle, where even the synergy between Jackson and Flowers or Lawrence and Thomas Jr. may not be enough to stave off another season of disappointment.

Ah, MrsStefanski: the fantasy football team that's clearly living in a parallel universe where reaching for Isaiah Likely at 10.08 is heralded as a stroke of genius rather than a reason for a raised eyebrow. Nestled comfortably in the 11th spot in their division and the illustrious 11th percentile overall, the team seems poised to redefine mediocrity with its ragtag assembly of gridiron heroes. Sure, they boast the division's strongest quarterback duo in Josh Allen and Baker Mayfield, but alas, the magic doesn't quite trickle down to the rest of the roster. With wide receivers like Nico Collins who was plucked from obscurity perhaps a touch early, and Deebo Samuel who delights in vacillating between brilliance and invisibility as WR41, the passing game promises to be a thrilling roller coaster of near-misses and what-ifs. Meanwhile, Mike Evans and Baker Mayfield form the kind of stack that might not be enshrined in the Fantasy Hall of Fame but could at least bring solace on a bleak fantasy Sunday. And let's not overlook the questionable decision to snatch Jalen McMillan and Dalton Kincaid ahead of schedule, because, truly, why settle for value when you can single-handedly inflate ADPs? As the season unfolds, one thing is for certain: MrsStefanski will provide ample entertainment for those who revel in watching a team teeter on the precipice of fantasy football glory or, more likely, ignominy.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms over pike1212, the outlook feels as bleak as a rainy November afternoon. Nestled in the lower echelons of both their division and the overall tournament, pike1212 finds itself ranked 10th in the Haas Factory Team standings and languishing in the dismal 13th percentile overall. The promise of a strong running back corps seems overshadowed by the glaring weaknesses elsewhere on the roster. While Ashton Jeanty might offer a glimmer of hope, the team is dragged down by its unreliable quarterbacks and an anemic receiving squad, with Luther Burden shockingly poised as a starter despite his lackluster projection. Although there were some savvy draft moves, like nabbing Jaylen Warren after his ADP, these were few and far between, marred by costly drafting missteps such as reaching for Jalen Milroe and Adam Thielen far too soon.

With Tyreek Hill struggling for consistency and Chris Olave failing to inspire confidence, it's hard to see a path forward for pike1212 that doesn't end in yet another frustrating season of underperformance and unrealized dreams.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms, the outlook for danny2good feels like a stark contrast to last year's successful campaign. Despite a powerful lineup of running backs led by the unstoppable Bijan Robinson, the team's overall standing paints a grim picture. With a disappointing ranking of 9th in their division, the Haas Factory Team, and languishing in the 14th percentile overall, the optimism from the previous season's 68th percentile finish has all but evaporated. The receiving corps struggles to inspire confidence, despite the presence of Garrett Wilson and Tee Higgins, who haven't quite managed to elevate the team out of mediocrity. Jonnu Smith, while crucial, remains a glaring weak link, whose performance could very well dictate the fate of this beleaguered squad. While some draft decisions brought unexpected value, others have raised eyebrows and added to the uncertainty of the upcoming season. With so much riding on individual performances, it's hard not to feel a sense of despair as the journey begins.

As richthem embarks on the 2025 fantasy football season, their strategy appears to hinge on the old adage that a strong offense is the best defense—or more accurately, a strong collection of wide receivers. With a cadre of pass-catchers led by Justin Jefferson and Puka Nacua, they're banking on aerial acrobatics to compensate for a backfield that might generously be described as lackluster, starring the dynamic duo of Tyrone Tracy and Tyjae Spears, perhaps the least intimidating one-two punch since paper met scissors. Despite this glaring inefficiency in the ground game, they've managed to find token solace in the draft room, where Joe Burrow's far-too-late selection whispers the faintest echo of shrewdness. Yet, no team is complete without a few eyebrow-raising decisions—evidently, the management's keen eye saw untapped potential in Xavier Worthy and Keon Coleman, well before other teams would have dared consider them. Of course, why simply stick to convention when you can boldly defy it, as evidenced by Cade Otton's preemptive arrival. As they prepare to face the gauntlet of the Haas Factory Team division, ranked a modest eighth, and vie for relevance in the broader arena where they proudly sit in the 20th percentile, much will ride on whether Spears can elevate his game or simply confirm our suspicions as the weakest link in their flawed but endearing chain of hope.

Ah, the whimsical world of fantasy football in 2025, where team avmckenn is poised for a season full of twists and turns, much like a soap opera with shoulder pads. With the sparkling duo of Jayden Daniels and Caleb Williams ready to orchestrate touchdown symphonies, avmckenn's quarterbacks are as dazzling as a disco ball at a dance-off. The wide receiver lineup, led by the radiant Amon-Ra St. Brown and Ladd McConkey, promises to paint the gridiron with all the colors of the end zone rainbow, while Rome Odunze, Calvin Ridley, and their crew are eager to sprinkle stardust on every catch. However, Najee Harris stands as the team's enigmatic riddle—a conundrum wrapped in a mystery, draped in a running back jersey. His performance could either elevate avmckenn to glory or unravel the delicate tapestry of victory they've woven. Meanwhile, tight ends are playing hide and seek with consistency, leaving Zach Ertz to navigate the labyrinth of tight end conundrums. In the mystical land of draft picks, avmckenn made a few bold moves, snagging Caleb Williams and Khalil Shakir like hidden treasures, while perhaps overzealously reaching for TreVeyon Henderson and others, creating an adventure map of opportunities missed and seized. As they set sail into the season, ranked at a curious 7th place in their division and nestled comfortably in the 33rd percentile, avmckenn embarks on a quest laced with potential and unpredictability. Will the team's fortunes soar like a phoenix from the ashes, or will they stumble comically like an overconfident toddler in cleats? Only time will tell in this fantastical football saga.

As the 2025 season approaches, rmggraham16 enters with a mix of optimism and uncertainty. After a challenging 2024 campaign where they only managed to win 28% of their games, the team is ready to climb the ladder. Currently ranked at sixth in their division, they sit in the 43rd percentile overall, signaling room for improvement. The team's wide receiver lineup stands out as a beacon of hope. With CeeDee Lamb leading the charge, supported by talents like Jaxon Smith-Njigba and Davante Adams, this group is poised to be a powerhouse within the division. Meanwhile, Saquon Barkley anchors the running back corps, though the depth behind him could face tests throughout the season. Quarterback remains a potential Achilles' heel for rmggraham16. With Jordan Love, Anthony Richardson, Sam Darnold, and Aaron Rodgers competing for snaps, consistency is a concern that could dictate the team’s fate. Michael Pittman, while critical to the starting roster, may find himself under pressure to perform as he appears to be the weakest link among the star-studded wide receivers. This season will pivot significantly on how these players perform and whether the risks taken in drafting pay off. As they navigate through a competitive field, each matchup will be crucial in determining whether they can elevate their standing and make a significant impact.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, YinzJagoffs08 is poised to build on last year's solid performance. With a roster featuring formidable running backs like Jahmyr Gibbs, Jonathan Taylor, and Chuba Hubbard, the team boasts a backfield capable of carrying the load throughout the season. Despite having some room for improvement in the quarterback and wide receiver positions with Jared Goff and C.J. Stroud leading the charge, the team's strategic draft decisions promise to enhance their competitiveness. The tight end trio of George Kittle, Travis Kelce, and Mark Andrews provides a significant edge in this year's TE Premium setup, while Jake Ferguson's role as a starter will be pivotal; his progress could be a decisive factor for the team's success. Notably, the team capitalized on value picks, particularly with Jared Goff and several others selected at advantageous points in the draft, setting them up for potential leaps forward. As they gear up for an exciting season, YinzJagoffs08 aims to climb higher in the standings, with aspirations to outperform their previous tournament percentile and secure a top spot in the Haas Factory Team division.

As SteveOSlice gears up for an exciting 2025 fantasy football season, optimism is in the air thanks to a well-rounded roster that promises to make waves both in their division, Haas Factory Team, and beyond. With a division rank of 4 and sitting comfortably in the 69th percentile overall, this team is primed for success. While Dallas Goedert stands as a crucial yet potentially vulnerable cornerstone at tight end, his performance could be the key to unlocking higher achievements. The wide receiver corps, headlined by A.J. Brown and bolstered by emerging talents like Rashee Rice and D.J. Moore, is expected to deliver consistent performances. SteveOSlice made shrewd draft moves, nabbing Justin Fields later than expected to add value to the quarterback position, while securing Christian McCaffrey with a strategic early selection that could pay substantial dividends. As the season unfolds, SteveOSlice is well-positioned to climb the ranks and make a significant impact in their competitive contests.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Team Pahlmeyer is poised for another exciting year following their impressive 2024 performance. Riding high from last year's 90th percentile point finish and a 72% win rate, they're set to be formidable contenders once again. Team Pahlmeyer's strength lies in their dynamic wide receiver lineup, headlined by Malik Nabers and Drake London, who form a duo that's sure to rack up points. Tetairoa McMillan, a strategic early pick, adds depth and versatility to the receiving corps. The team's tight ends are equally impressive, with Brock Bowers and T.J. Hockenson leading the charge, giving them a clear edge in this crucial position. Despite being one of the younger teams, they bring a refreshing energy and potential for growth, especially with players like Jayden Reed looking to step up as a key starter. While their running back ranking leaves room for improvement, the savvy drafting of Kenneth Walker III offers significant upside. Team Pahlmeyer's adept management in the draft, securing players like Drake Maye below their ADP, positions them well for success. As they enter the season ranked third in their division and in the top quarter of overall teams, Team Pahlmeyer is set for an exhilarating journey filled with promise and high expectations.

As the dawn of the 2025 fantasy football season breaks, Team Grundogg stands poised on the precipice of greatness, ready to unleash a symphony of gridiron prowess. In the hallowed arena of the Haas Factory Team division, they have carved out a formidable presence, a testament to their strategic brilliance and unwavering tenacity. Led by the dynamic force of Jalen Hurts, whose commanding presence as QB4 orchestrates the offense with masterful precision, the team's quarterback corps also boasts the electrifying talents of Kyler Murray and Bryce Young, creating a triumvirate of aerial excellence. On the ground, the relentless rush of De'Von Achane and Derrick Henry promises to trample any resistance, forging a path of dominance alongside the reliable strides of Joe Mixon and Aaron Jones. The wide receiver and tight end positions may seem less illustrious, yet the calculated gamble on Rashid Shaheed, despite being reached for, adds an intriguing layer to this intricate tapestry. Meanwhile, the shrewd acquisitions of players like Jalen Hurts and J.K. Dobbins at great value epitomize the team's strategic cunning. With their ranks elevated to the esteemed second place in division rankings and perched majestically in the rarified air of the 92nd percentile, Team Grundogg embarks on this season's journey with ambition burning brightly, their eyes set firmly on the ultimate prize—a testament to their indomitable spirit and tactical acumen.

The 2025 season looks incredibly promising for pfitzsimmmons85 as they gear up for an exciting fantasy football campaign. Riding high with a first-place division ranking and strong performance in the overall standings, the team is poised to capitalize on their momentum and build upon the lessons learned from last year's challenges. Their strategic approach during the draft has yielded tremendous value, especially with the acquisition of top-tier quarterback Patrick Mahomes later than expected, adding significant firepower to their roster. The tight end position, a crucial component in this TE Premium setup, boasts a formidable lineup featuring Trey McBride and Tyler Warren, ensuring consistent scoring opportunities. Javonte Williams, although a weaker starter, was also acquired at a favorable draft position, highlighting the team's keen eye for value. With an impressive wide receiver corps led by Ja'Marr Chase, who stands as the top-ranked WR, alongside reliable targets like Courtland Sutton and Cooper Kupp, pfitzsimmmons85 is set to dominate the field. The savvy selection of Bo Nix at a bargain further strengthens their depth, creating a dynamic stack with Courtland Sutton that promises explosive potential. As they prepare to take the league by storm, pfitzsimmmons85 is well-equipped to surpass expectations and make a significant impact in the 2025 fantasy football season.
