Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, MelissaJacobsFF finds itself in the enviable position of dead last in their division, while impressively floating at the top 4 percent of nearly 5,000 teams—if you read that as a percentage, it might sound better. After a triumphantly middling 2024 season, they seem determined to remind us all of their true potential—before anyone gets any wild ideas about championship hopes. The team's backfield is led by a trio of running backs who could generously be described as 'available': Cam Skattebo RB34, James Conner RB20, and Tyrone Tracy RB33. Meanwhile, the wide receiver corps, featuring heavy hitters like Puka Nacua WR5 and Ladd McConkey WR10, are poised to ensure that, while the team may go down, it does so catching hail marys. The real strategic genius shines through in the draft choices, where MelissaJacobsFF snagged Blake Corum and Zach Ertz just shy of their ADPs, proving that even small victories can feel like moral victories. Yet, in a daring display of foresight—or maybe just optimism—they reached for Joe Burrow well ahead of his time, ensuring that if this ship sinks, it will do so spectacularly with a franchise quarterback at the helm. So here's to a season that promises to be an unforgettable ride, mainly for those watching from a safe distance.

Ah, the 2025 season beckons for Dutts13, and it promises to be a thrilling mix of mediocrity and missed opportunities. Nestled snugly at 11th in the division and barely grazing the 13th percentile overall, this team is primed to make an impact—just not the kind you'd want. With Jaydon Blue valiantly holding the fort as RB42, it's clear the strategy this year revolves around redefining what it means to "scrape the bottom of the barrel." Despite a dazzling display of reaching beyond the stars for players like Justin Fields at his bargain-basement draft spot, the team's WR corps, featuring the likes of Malik Nabers and Garrett Wilson, looks poised to ensure they'll at least have company at the middle-of-the-pack finish line. And let's not forget the masterclass in timing displayed with Chris Godwin and Cedric Tillman—who needs value when you can have them a round early? Sure, there was that one dazzling bit of serendipity snagging Austin Ekeler later than expected, but who needs consistent performance when you can have the thrill of surprise every week? As Dutts13 gears up for another season, one thing is certain: they're bound to entertain us, if not with their scores, then certainly with their unpredictable draft strategies.

TE: Travis Kelce (S) (TE5 | $15 | 5.05), Mark Andrews (S) (TE9 | $8 | 9.05)

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms ominously on the horizon, the prospects for EricJohnFlynn appear bleak at best. Marooned in the murky depths of the Liverpool division, languishing at rank 10, and clinging to a paltry 16th percentile overall, it's shaping up to be a turbulent year. The wide receiver corps, a glaring Achilles' heel, offers little solace; Marvin Harrison Jr., pegged optimistically at WR16, leads an uninspiring lineup featuring George Pickens and Michael Pittman, both struggling outside the top 30, with Darnell Mooney barely scraping by. In an unconvincing backfield, even Derrick Henry's typical prowess seems insufficient to counterbalance the underwhelming presence of J.K. Dobbins, whose questionable value stings despite being snagged later than expected. Meanwhile, the selection of Russell Wilson ahead of his ADP leaves doubts simmering about decision-making at the helm. Though Mark Andrews provides a rare glimmer of hope with his acquisition below market value, such strategic flashes are scarce in a roster that feels like it's teetering on the edge of irrelevance. As the team navigates choppy waters with a shaky foundation, the 2025 campaign threatens to be another exercise in futility, with brighter horizons hard to envision.

TE: Brenton Strange (TE21 | $1 | 11.08), Ja'Tavion Sanders (TE30 | $0 | 18.05)

As RedRyderSFB embarks on their 2025 fantasy football odyssey, it's heartwarming to see them perched comfortably at ninth in the Liverpool division, basking in the glory of the illustrious 28th percentile. After their stunning 2024 performance, where they dazzled us all by winning a whopping 19% of their games and scoring in the top 90%, expectations are barely perceptible. This year, they've taken the radical strategy of investing heavily in wide receivers with Ja'Marr Chase WR1 leading the charge, while Marvin Mims WR56 heroically attempts to defy his ranking as a projected starter. Meanwhile, tight end Brenton Strange TE21 will valiantly continue his quest to redefine mediocrity. The running backs, led by Bucky Irving RB8, should provide just enough oomph to maintain that coveted division rank of seventh. Despite some noteworthy adventures in draft day value—such as the inspired early grab of Bhayshul Tuten RB45—RedRyderSFB remains committed to proving that consistent underachievement can, indeed, be a team identity.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Elvisn finds itself positioned at an intriguing crossroads in the Liverpool division and beyond. Ranked 8th in the division and in the 36th percentile overall, Elvisn boasts a formidable lineup of quarterbacks, featuring the elite Lamar Jackson (QB1) and solid talents like Cam Ward (QB23) and Sam Darnold (QB28). However, Cam Ward's performance will be critical, as he holds the potential to either advance or stall the team's divisional climb. The running back corps is another highlight for Elvisn, with standout players such as Kyren Williams (RB11) and Alvin Kamara (RB14) poised to provide consistent support. Yet, the team faces challenges at wide receiver, relying on the likes of Chris Olave (WR35) and Brandon Aiyuk (WR50), the latter of whom was drafted slightly ahead of his projected spot. While Elvisn strategically snagged Justice Hill later than his expected draft position for excellent value, they may have overreached on Elic Ayomanor, potentially losing value in the process. As the season unfolds, balancing these strengths and weaknesses will determine whether Elvisn can rise to meet the competition both within their division and on a wider scale.

As the joshadhd squad prepares to dazzle in the fantastical realm of 2025, the season's tale is already ripe with whimsical possibilities. Coming off a heroic 2024 campaign, where they soared like mythical griffins into the 87th percentile and secured a 75% win rate, there's much excitement in the air. Led by their charioteer, Josh Allen, ranked QB2, the team is primed to throw thunderbolts of success. Meanwhile, Jordan Love quietly polishes his armor, a trusty QB20 sidekick. Yet, like a fabled quest, every journey has its trials, and for joshadhd, the wobbly bridge may just be Jake Ferguson. While his ADP suggests he should have been snatched up sooner, his TE14 crown will need to shine brightly to keep the kingdom secure. In the wide world of receivers, joshadhd boasts a motley crew: Travis Hunter stands proud at WR12, while D.J. Moore, Zay Flowers, and Josh Downs prepare their own magical mischief at WR22, WR28, and WR43 respectively. Though ranked 8th in their division of receiving sorcerers, they are poised to enchant with unexpected trickery. Currently lounging at 7th place within the Liverpool Division and nestled in the 43rd percentile of the grand tournament, joshadhd faces a whimsical uphill journey. Can they climb to glory once more? Perhaps, if their stars align, Jake Ferguson finds his groove, and their cast of characters continues to weave spells on the gridiron. Stay tuned as this jolly band of footballing adventurers quests for the ultimate fantasy prize!

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, KurtKnwsBest looks to climb higher in the standings after a challenging 2024 campaign where they struggled with low scoring and only managed to win 14% of their games. Despite currently ranking 6th in their division and sitting in the 46th percentile overall, there's a palpable sense of optimism surrounding this team, primarily fueled by their formidable wide receiver corps. With stars like Justin Jefferson and CeeDee Lamb leading the charge, alongside other strong options such as Drake London and Tee Higgins, their wide receivers are undoubtedly the strongest asset in their division. However, the team's success could hinge on Emeka Egbuka stepping up to provide solid performances, given his projected starting role despite being one of the lower-ranked players on the roster. The quarterback situation remains a concern, with Dak Prescott being the highest-ranked at QB15, and the running back depth also appears thin. This team managed to secure great value by drafting Justin Jefferson slightly later than his average draft position, while their decision to reach for Michael Penix Jr. earlier than expected remains a gamble. With a small stack bonus from the Prescott and Lamb duo, KurtKnwsBest will be keen to leverage every advantage they have to improve their standing and make a significant impact this season.

Anchored by powerhouse Saquon Barkley and bolstered by the likes of Jonathan Taylor and Chase Brown, they hold the strongest backfield in the division, giving them a significant edge on the ground game. While their wide receiver and tight end positions may present challenges, the team's strategic drafting has added depth and potential steals like Jaylen Wright, who could surprise many. Najee Harris, despite being projected as a starter, may need to elevate his game to ensure the team remains competitive in both their division and overall standings. With a balanced approach and some shrewd draft picks, Saquing Back Sunday is ready to rise through the ranks, armed with the determination to surpass expectations and make this season one to remember.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Greg Gibeault is poised for an electrifying campaign, driven by a stunning combination of strategic drafting and standout talent. Ranked 4th in the fiercely competitive Liverpool division and sitting comfortably in the 80th percentile overall, this squad is ready to make waves. The team's tight end lineup is nothing short of spectacular, boasting Brock Bowers as the top-ranked TE, complemented by Trey McBride, who is a close second. These dynamic playmakers form the backbone of Greg Gibeault's powerful arsenal, ensuring a consistent edge in this scoring format. Though the running back corps may not be the highlight, with Travis Etienne ranked at RB31, the wide receiver group offers impressive depth and firepower. With Brian Thomas Jr. leading the charge at WR8, Tyreek Hill providing explosive potential at WR17, and a solid supporting cast featuring Tetairoa McMillan, Jerry Jeudy, and Calvin Ridley, this team is a force to be reckoned with. The quarterback position hinges on the performance of Bryce Young, whose ability to elevate his game could be the key to unlocking the team's full potential. Additionally, the shrewd value pick of Patrick Mahomes, taken a round later than his ADP, adds an extra layer of brilliance to the lineup. As Greg Gibeault embarks on this thrilling journey, they stand ready to challenge even the most formidable opponents, setting the stage for a season of triumph and glory.

As the 2025 fantasy football season unfurls its tapestry of drama and destiny, DukeOfBerlin stands poised on the cusp of greatness, their eyes set not only on dominating their division but etching their name among the elite. With a formidable backfield led by the electric Ashton Jeanty, an explosive De'Von Achane who represents a coup at his draft position, and the ever-resilient Joe Mixon, this team is a juggernaut in the making. Amidst the swirling chaos of nearly 5,000 competitors, they have carved out a place in the upper echelons, riding the powerful legs of their running backs to a lofty percentile standing. While wide receivers like Nico Collins, who brilliantly synchronizes with C.J. Stroud, and the dynamic Courtland Sutton, harmonizing with Bo Nix, add layers of depth, it's the undercurrent of synergy through roster stack bonuses that elevates their strategic prowess. Even as Jordan Mason anchors the ground game, perhaps overshadowed by more illustrious names, he remains a vital cog in their ascent. Though ranked third in their division—a position that reflects both challenge and opportunity—DukeOfBerlin's campaign is marked by potential and precision, a testament to cunning choices and the promise of triumphs yet to be realized.

The 2025 season looks exceptionally promising for TheDynastyMind, as they prepare to showcase their remarkable turnaround potential. After a challenging 2024 season, the team is now poised for a major comeback, demonstrated by their impressive rankings. Currently sitting at second in their division and within the top percentile overall, TheDynastyMind is ready to capitalize on their momentum. A key strength lies in their formidable tight ends, with George Kittle leading the charge in this TE Premium setup. The wide receiver corps, featuring talents like Amon-Ra St. Brown and A.J. Brown, promises to be one of the most dynamic and reliable units in the league. Meanwhile, Justin Herbert, picked at incredible value, stands ready to orchestrate an explosive offense. Though Zach Charbonnet might be a concern as a weaker starter, strategic draft choices have bolstered the team's depth and resilience. As they head into the new season, TheDynastyMind is primed for success, driven by smart drafting and a resurgence in team chemistry and performance.

As TheMicktorious sets its sights on the 2025 fantasy football season, there is palpable excitement surrounding this formidable squad. Ranked at the top of their division and sitting in the enviable 96th percentile overall, this team is poised for greatness. Their success is built around a shrewd draft strategy that saw them acquire top-tier talent and exceptional value picks. Jalen Hurts and Jared Goff, both snagged later than expected, headline a dynamic quarterback duo, while the wide receiver corps—featuring Jaxon Smith-Njigba, Mike Evans, DeVonta Smith, and Jameson Williams—boasts incredible depth and potential to outpace their division rank. Although Jonnu Smith may be a question mark at tight end, he was a steal late in the draft, adding even more intrigue. Strategic stack bonuses with Hurts and Smith, as well as Goff's connections with LaPorta and Williams, promise explosive performances. With savvy pickups like Tyjae Spears and Cooper Kupp further bolstering their roster, TheMicktorious is ready to dominate the competition and make a deep run this season.
