Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As jockster1976 prepares to enter the 2025 fantasy football season, the team is coming off a roller-coaster 2024 where they finished in the 74th percentile, a respectable showing that belied some underlying weaknesses. Heading into this year, however, the outlook is considerably more daunting. Ranked last in their division and languishing in the bottom tier overall, jockster1976 faces an uphill battle. The team's Achilles' heel is their quarterback situation, with Sam Darnold struggling as QB28, which casts a long shadow over their prospects. The running back stable isn't much better, with Tyjae Spears, ranked RB41, expected to shoulder a heavy load despite his limited pedigree. Yet, hope lingers in a strong wide receiver corps, headlined by Justin Jefferson, Tyreek Hill, and Courtland

Sutton. However, reaching for players like Brashard Smith and Darren Waller well before their average draft positions has cost them valuable depth and flexibility. As the season unfolds, jockster1976 will need to find a way to bridge these gaps if they hope to climb out of the basement and recapture past glory.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms on the horizon, team samhalp finds itself staring down a daunting uphill battle. Despite starting with strong arms in Lamar Jackson and Joe Burrow, the team's glaring deficiencies cast a long shadow over any hopes for success. With a division ranking of 11, and sitting in the lowly 19th percentile overall, it feels like an insurmountable chasm to climb. The running back corps is woefully inadequate, leaving the team scrambling to cobble together consistent performances week to week. And although there's some optimism in the wide receiver group with Marvin Harrison Jr. and Tee Higgins leading the charge, the depth quickly dissipates, with later selections like Zay Flowers and Khalil Shakir needing to punch well above their weight. The team's decision to reach for players like Devin Neal and Zay Flowers earlier than anticipated might just haunt them as the season progresses. Even the tight end position offers little solace, with Kyle Pitts, ranked 17th, forced into the starting lineup. Despite potential stack bonuses with the likes of Lamar Jackson and Mark Andrews or Joe Burrow and Higgins, these fleeting advantages seem unlikely to lift the team above its grim prospects. As the competition heats up, samhalp can only hope for improvement amidst the storm of challenges that lie ahead.

Ah, the 2025 fantasy football season looms over childplease08 like a dubious cloud of misplaced optimism. With a division rank of 10th, this team's owners have surely invested in a generous supply of antacids. Their overconfident quarterback duo, led by the almost heroic Jayden Daniels and his sidekick C.J. Stroud, promises to deliver just enough points to keep the team from breaking into laughter or tears. Meanwhile, Jaydon Blue, the running back sensation (ranked at a mere 42), is set to prove that mediocrity is not just a phase but a lifestyle choice. Wide receivers Brian Thomas Jr., Davante Adams, and DeVonta Smith will no doubt engage in a spirited contest to see who can outdo each other in brief flashes of brilliance. On the tight end front, reaching for Travis Kelce and others way ahead of their ADP can only be seen as an avant-garde approach to squandering draft picks. And while childplease08 basks in the cozy embrace of the 20th percentile in the tournament, they have admirably decided to take the road less traveled—a road paved with questionable decisions and the faint hope of mid-season trades.

The 2025 season for DanBirch is set to be an intriguing journey as they aim to climb the ranks in both their division, the Louisville Cardinals, and a broader competitive landscape. With a strong stable of running backs, including Ashton Jeanty, Jonathan Taylor, and Kenneth Walker III leading the charge, DanBirch is poised to dominate on the ground. Their depth at this position, featuring talents like Cam Skattebo, Chuba Hubbard, and Isiah Pacheco, ensures they can weather injuries and fatigue better than most. However, the team faces challenges with their wide receiver corps, as Jayden Higgins stands out as their top option, lacking support from other wideouts. Tight end Zach Ertz will be pivotal, though his performance could be a potential vulnerability. DanBirch will look to maximize value from Cam Ward, who was acquired later than expected, providing a strategic advantage. Conversely, reaching for Tahj Brooks and Jalen Royals might complicate roster management and affect their flexibility. As they enter the season ranked ninth in their division and sitting in the 32nd percentile overall, DanBirch will need to balance their strengths and address their weaknesses to make significant strides and outperform expectations.

In the whimsical world of fantasy football, the Jason Willan team is embarking on an adventurous 2025 season that promises to be a rollercoaster ride of delight and despair. With a current standing at rank 8 in their division and in the 36th percentile overall, this team is poised on the precipice of potential. The spotlight shines brightly on their quarterbacks, with Dak Prescott doing his best to steer the ship at QB15, while Anthony Richardson, a key yet somewhat shaky component, balances precariously at QB27. If Richardson can muster some magic, the team's fate might just take a surprising turn. Meanwhile, the tight end duo of Sam LaPorta and Evan Engram is set to deliver some serious end-zone fun, as their premium skills promise to keep scoreboards lighting up across the competition. Wide receivers CeeDee Lamb and Nico Collins are ready to dazzle, hoping to elevate the team's air game to new heights. However, whispers in the wind suggest that Jason Willan may have reached a bit too early for Anthony Richardson and Elijah Arroyo, with the former's selection raising more eyebrows than a cat with a cucumber. And let's not forget Woody Marks, whose draft position was more of a leap than a step, causing a few chuckles among the numbers-crunchers. Despite these quirks, there's an undeniable buzz of anticipation around the secret weapon: the Dak Prescott-to-CeeDee Lamb stack that could explode like fireworks on a summer night. As the season unfolds, the Jason Willan team is all set to entertain, enchant, and perhaps even exceed expectations in their fantastical football journey.

TE: Isaiah Likely (TE18 | $2 | 12.08), Mason Taylor (TE23 | $0 | 15.05), Theo Johnson (TE29 | $0 | 17.05)

As Jerryb83 gears up for the 2025 fantasy football season, they find themselves navigating a challenging landscape. Coming off a strong performance in 2024 where they finished in the 68th percentile, their current standing sees them at 7th place in their division while sitting in the 39th percentile overall. The team boasts a formidable running back lineup, headlined by Jahmyr Gibbs and Josh Jacobs, who promise to be key contributors this season. However, the quarterback position remains a concern, with Brock Purdy leading a group that includes Bryce Young and Aaron Rodgers, whose performances could make or break the season. Young, in particular, is under the spotlight as a projected starter and potential weak link. In the wide receiver department, Drake London offers hope, but the depth is questionable, leaving room for improvement. Notably, the team got great value in drafting Javonte Williams, but missed opportunities with early selections of players like J.K. Dobbins. As they prepare to compete, Jerryb83 will need to leverage their strengths and address their weaknesses to climb the rankings and make a significant impact this year.

As the DisciplesOTW gear up for their 2025 fantasy football season, anticipation swirls around a roster that exhibits both promise and potential pitfalls. Positioned midway in their division at rank 6 and falling within the 46th percentile overall, this team aims to climb the ranks with a strategic blend of talent and perhaps a bit of luck. At the forefront of their campaign is a formidable lineup of wide receivers, spearheaded by Amon-Ra St. Brown, who holds an impressive positional ranking at WR6. The depth at this position is further bolstered by Jaxon Smith-Njigba and Tetairoa McMillan, adding much-needed versatility to their offensive arsenal. However, all eyes will be on Darnell Mooney, a crucial starter whose performance could sway the team's fortunes either way. His contributions will be pivotal in determining whether the team can rise above their current standing.

In the running back department, Bijan Robinson commands attention as the top RB, while Joe Mixon provides solid support despite being drafted a tad earlier than expected. The quarterback position benefits from a savvy draft decision, with Justin Herbert joining the squad slightly later than his average draft position suggested, potentially offering significant value. Yet, the tight end role remains a notable weakness, leaving a gap that the DisciplesOTW will need to address as the season progresses. As they navigate the challenges of their division and beyond, maintaining consistency and capitalizing on their strengths, particularly their wide receiver prowess, will be essential for elevating their rank and achieving success in the months to come.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, @stephenandress1 is gearing up for another exciting campaign, building on last year's strong 71 percentile finish. With a solid core of running backs, including Saquon Barkley, Bucky Irving, and RJ Harvey, the team is poised to make strides both in their division and beyond. The youthful energy of the squad, averaging just under 25 years old, promises a fresh and dynamic approach on the field. While Matthew Golden, a crucial piece of their wide receiver lineup, presents some uncertainty, his potential upside could be the key to unlocking a higher echelon of success. The strategic draft choices, like snagging Jack Bech later than expected, enhance the team's depth, while the decision to reach for Oronde Gadsden demonstrates a bold commitment to unique strategies. Ranked fifth in the Louisville Cardinals division, @stephenandress1 is positioned well to challenge for top spots, leveraging both seasoned talent and emerging stars. The season ahead holds great promise as this resilient team looks to climb the ranks with their blend of strategic planning and dynamic playmakers.

TE: Tyler Warren (S) (TE10 | $7 | 8.07), Jonnu Smith (TE15 | $3 | 12.07)

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, RLuck001 is poised for an exhilarating journey. They're entering the season with a formidable foundation, especially at quarterback. With Josh Allen and Jalen Hurts leading the charge, the team boasts unparalleled strength in this key position, setting them up as a powerhouse in aerial attacks. Their wide receiver lineup is equally impressive, featuring A.J. Brown and Garrett Wilson, who promise to deliver dynamic performances week after week. The strategic addition of Rome Odunze and the stack advantage with the Brown-Hurts connection further bolster their offensive firepower. While running back depth could be a concern, the team is counting on Najee Harris to step up and make a significant impact. If Harris can meet expectations, RLuck001 has the potential to climb the ranks quickly and outshine many competitors. Drafting savvy choices like Jonnu Smith late adds depth and potential breakout value, giving them a competitive edge. With a solid mix of star power and strategic picks, RLuck001 is ready to challenge rivals and make a significant mark this season.

As the 2025 season kicks off, @FFDizzle is poised for a remarkable comeback, riding high on a wave of optimism and anticipation. Despite a challenging 2024, they've soared to new heights, ranking third in their division and impressively in the 77th percentile overall. Their strength lies in an exceptional wide receiver corps, undeniably the best in the Louisville Cardinals division, spearheaded by the electric Ja'Marr Chase, who holds the prestigious WR1 status. Complementing him are formidable talents like Ladd McConkey and Terry McLaurin, ensuring a nightmare for any opposing defense. Their tight end lineup, featuring the ever-reliable George Kittle, adds another layer of potency, particularly valuable in this TE Premium format. While the running back roster may not boast top-tier names, Chase Brown's strategic draft positioning reflects the team's savvy maneuvers that could yield significant dividends. Moreover, Emeka Egbuka stands as a key player to watch, potentially transforming perceived weaknesses into unexpected strength. With a keen eye for value, they've also secured MarShawn Lloyd at a significant draft bargain, highlighting the team's strategic acumen. As the season unfolds, @FFDizzle is set to captivate fans and competitors alike, with a lineup that promises both resilience and explosive playmaking.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, WhoBap stands poised to electrify the gridiron with a roster that merges strategic brilliance and potent firepower. Emerging like a phoenix from the drafting war room, they've assembled a team that ranks them second in the fiercely contested Louisville Cardinals division while placing them comfortably in the upper echelon of the tournament's finest. At the heart of this powerhouse ensemble is the unparalleled dominance of their tight end duo, led by Trey McBride, whose prowess as TE2 promises to be a game-changer in this TE Premium setup. Complemented by the reliable hands of Dallas Goedert and the underrated tenacity of Hunter Henry, WhoBap's tight ends are an undeniable force. Though Rhamondre Stevenson, ranked RB40, may be perceived as a potential Achilles' heel, the team's strategic acumen in selecting Patrick Mahomes at a remarkable value infuses their lineup with explosive potential. Their wide receiver corps, featuring Malik Nabers—acquired earlier than most anticipated, a decision that already shows signs of genius—alongside Rashee Rice and Jameson Williams, forms a dynamic trio poised to soar above expectations. This aerial attack gains further synergy from the Mahomes-Rice connection, promising fireworks week after week. Bolstered by shrewd late-round steals like Blake Corum and the astute addition of Jameson Williams, WhoBap's lineup is a masterclass in tactical drafting, crafting a narrative of impending triumph as they prepare to conquer all challengers on their path to glory.
