Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As TheJoshKimmel steps onto the fantasy gridiron for the 2025 season, the outlook seems as bleak as a rainy day with no end in sight. Despite their aspirations to climb out of last year's dismal performance, where they languished in the bottom tier, the team's prospects appear dim. Ranked at the bottom of their division and languishing in the low percentiles overall, the shadows of last season's woes loom large. While the roster boasts an enviable collection of wide receivers like Puka Nacua and Nico Collins, whose performances spark hope, the running back situation remains a glaring weakness, with Jaylen Warren struggling to break into the upper tier. The tight end position, supposedly a strong point for TheJoshKimmel, suffers from a shaky foundation, as Tucker Kraft takes the stage as a projected starter despite his middling status. Drafting miscues compound these issues, with questionable decisions overshadowing any glimmers of value found in late-round picks. As the season unfolds, it feels like the team is on a treadmill to nowhere, desperately needing a turnaround but finding themselves stuck in a quagmire of their own making.

As BrandonBlancoFF lurches into the 2025 fantasy football season, the phrase "a tale of two halves" would do it too much credit. Imagine adding an extra sprinkle of calamity to last year's mediocrity, and you might just have the makings of their current outlook. Stuck stubbornly at a dizzying 11th in the Miami Dolphins division, they offer a master class in how not to rank anywhere near respectable, with a tournament percentile that suggests they might as well be playing in an alternate universe where losing is the new winning. With quarterbacks like Trevor Lawrence, who was snapped up at a price tag that could have bought two much-needed running backs, and Tua Tagovailoa, whose ADP was more elusive than his on-field performance, this roster is relying heavily on its receiver corps to perform miracles. But let's not forget the comedy of overreaching: drafting Garrett Wilson and Brian Thomas Jr. early, as if they'll single-handedly carry the team to glory, all while Rashid Shaheed takes the stage as a starting wide receiver, which is about as likely to inspire confidence as a half-baked motivational speech. If there's any silver lining, it's the great value they snagged with D'Andre Swift —assuming he can actually stay on the field. So here's to BrandonBlancoFF, a team that's managed to take the art of unfulfilling potential to unparalleled heights.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms, the GridironGangstas find themselves on a rocky path, ranking near the bottom of their division and barely inching above the lower echelons overall. Despite a bruising stable of running backs led by Christian McCaffrey, Derrick Henry, and Chase Brown, their hopes remain clouded by shaky wide receiver options in Deebo Samuel and Jayden Reed. The team's management aims to rebound from a dismal previous year, where they struggled with both scoring and victories. This season could hinge on how well they navigate their weak spots, particularly the reliance on Jaydon Blue as a starter, despite his lower ranking. There is a glimmer of hope with the potentially undervalued Cade Otton, yet reaching too far for players like David Njoku and others in the draft may haunt them. As the GridironGangstas gear up for another grueling campaign, they'll need a blend of luck, strategy, and standout performances to climb out of mediocrity.

As the 2025 fantasy football season approaches, You Talk Sports - Greig finds itself in a delicate position, standing at 9th in the Miami Dolphins division and nestled in the 24th percentile overall. With a dynamic quarterback lineup headlined by Jayden Daniels, who was shrewdly snagged later than anticipated, the team hopes to capitalize on their aerial strengths. The receiving corps, marked by the likes of Travis Hunter and Rashee Rice, promises consistent production, though much will hinge on the performance of Kyle Pitts at tight end. In this TE Premium format, McBride's prowess offers a solid backbone, but Pitts' contribution could make or break their campaign. Running back depth is a concern, with Bhayshul Tuten and Ray Davis left to shoulder the ground game, which lacks the punch of their passing attack. Despite having snatched Jerry Jeudy at a favorable draft position, the team's foresight wavered with overly eager selections like Harold Fannin. As they navigate a competitive landscape, the squad remains hopeful yet wary, knowing that balancing these strengths and vulnerabilities will be crucial in clawing upward from their current standings.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Team Kavorka, proudly sitting in the illustrious Miami Dolphins division, is ready to channel its inner chaos magic on the field. After their jaw-dropping performance last year, where they danced through the competition like a caffeinated squirrel at a nut convention, Kavorka now finds themselves placed 8th in their division with a respectable 47th percentile standing overall. Armed with the strongest quarterback duo in the division, Lamar Jackson and Joe Burrow are set to unleash a symphony of touchdowns that will have opponents reeling. However, the team's fate might just rest on the sturdy legs of Jordan Mason, the honorable RB38, who is tasked with defying expectations and maybe even gravity. With wide receivers like Tyreek

"The Cheetah" Hill sprinting alongside Mike Evans and D.J. Moore, the aerial assault promises to be both thrilling and slightly bewildering. Kavorka is also brimming with sneaky value picks like Breece Hall and Cam Skattebo, who were nabbed so late that even the draft clock couldn't believe it. And let's not forget the magical synergy from the Lamar Jackson-Mark Andrews dynamic duo, which could become the stuff of legend if Mark ever stops eating Lamar's postgame snacks. So, grab your popcorn and prepare for a season where Kavorka hopes to conjure up enough wins to leave their competition in a dizzying whirlwind.

As NFThree embarks on their 2025 fantasy football saga, they're poised to unleash a whirlwind of gridiron antics that are sure to keep fans on the edge of their couches. After an unremarkable finish in 2024, languishing in the murky middle of mediocrity, they're now ready to shake things up with a quarterback trifecta as spicy as a pepperoni pizza: Jalen Hurts is leading the charge, with Justin Fields hot on his heels, and Aaron Rodgers bringing his seasoned charm to the huddle. In the wide receiver circus, Ja'Marr Chase is bound to strut his stuff, while Brandon Aiyuk might need to chug some magical elixirs to keep up. The team also boasts some treasure-hunt value finds like Zach Charbonnet and Pat Freiermuth, snagged at prices so low you'd think they came with a coupon. Meanwhile, Jakobi Meyers and Jauan Jennings are ready to prove they're worth every penny, even if they were picked up a tad early. As NFThree settles into their divisional escapades, they stand seventh in line, dreaming of glory, while basking in the 47th percentile light that whispers of potential—a rollercoaster season awaits!

With a formidable lineup of running backs led by Ashton Jeanty, Bucky Irving, and Kyren Williams, the team is well-positioned to power through opponents with a strong ground game. While their wide receiver core might not be as deep, Tee Higgins and DeVonta Smith are poised to deliver solid performances that can turn close matchups in their favor. A key storyline this season will be the impact of Tyjae Spears; if he steps up and plays beyond expectations, it could elevate the team's performance significantly. Savvy draft choices like Brian Robinson and Jalen McMillan could prove to be excellent investments, adding depth and versatility to the roster. Meanwhile, Baker Mayfield's earlier-than-expected selection underscores the management's confidence in his ability to lead the charge. With a balanced mix of talent and potential surprises, ALL THE SMOKE has a solid chance to climb the ranks and make a memorable impact this season.

As "I Want The Smoke" gears up for an exciting 2025 fantasy football season, the team has every reason to be optimistic. Building on a stellar 2024 performance, where they finished in the top 80 percent of all competitors, this team looks poised to make waves yet again. The impressive running back lineup, featuring Jahmyr Gibbs, Jonathan Taylor, and Kenneth Walker III, provides a dynamic foundation that will drive the team forward. Alvin Kamara, picked at just the right time in the draft, adds depth and versatility to the ground game, ensuring that the team's running attack remains one of its most formidable weapons. In the quarterback room, while Matthew Stafford is expected to play a crucial role as a starter, it's Justin Herbert who offers a glimmer of hope, with his selection providing excellent value. If Stafford can deliver consistent performances, the team will be well-positioned to climb the ranks. The wide receiver corps, led by Jaxon Smith-Njigba and supported by Davante Adams and George Pickens, promises to surprise opponents, especially given their strategic draft positioning. Overall, "I Want The Smoke" is set to embark on a thrilling campaign, leveraging past successes and smart draft choices to push for higher standings both within their division and in broader competition. With key players ready to shine and potential for growth across the board, fans of the team should prepare for an exhilarating season that could see them exceed expectations once more.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, team jerryj22 is poised for an exciting and promising year. After a successful 2024 season, finishing in a strong 72 percentile, they're ready to build on that momentum. With a solid standing in the 79th percentile this year, the team is well-positioned to make a significant impact. Led by standout performances from wide receivers Amon-Ra St. Brown and A.J. Brown, their receiving corps is among the best in their division. Xavier Worthy's potential for breakout performances adds depth and excitement, while Keon Coleman, though perhaps the team's most unpredictable factor, offers intriguing upside as a starter. The strategic drafting of players like Jerome Ford and Amon-Ra St. Brown has allowed jerryj22 to secure considerable value, setting the stage for a competitive edge. The Mahomes-Worthy stack could prove to be a game-changer, providing explosive scoring opportunities. Despite taking a risk with Dalton Schultz earlier than expected, the team's overall composition remains balanced and strategically sound. As they aim to climb the ranks, jerryj22 is ready to embrace challenges and surprises, bringing dynamic play to both the division and beyond.

As the 2025 season kicks off, Team JohnDank is gearing up for a spectacular run with a roster skillfully tailored to challenge opponents on every front. Coming off an average 2024, this team has already made significant strides, rising to the top of their division rankings and boasting an impressive overall percentile in the competition. The key to their success lies in their formidable tight end lineup, spearheaded by Brock Bowers and Isaiah Likely, offering unmatched performance in a TE Premium setup. While Michael Penix Jr. may not headline their roster at quarterback, his supporting cast of dynamic wide receivers—led by the electrifying CeeDee Lamb and bolstered by talents like Ladd McConkey and Jaylen Waddle—ensures that this squad is armed to overtake any defense. The shrewd management behind the scenes has capitalized on draft opportunities, securing exceptional value with seasoned players like Aaron Jones and CeeDee Lamb, setting the stage for strategic depth across the board. With such a well-rounded lineup and strategic foresight, JohnDank stands poised to make waves this season, eagerly eyeing both division supremacy and a strong showing in the overall rankings.

The 2025 season is shaping up to be a thrilling ride for JayKile1, as they emerge as formidable contenders both in their division and on the broader fantasy football landscape. Building on their past experiences, JayKile1 has surged to the top, currently sitting proudly at rank 2 in their division and within the top 9% overall. This impressive ascent is fueled by strategic player selections and shrewd draft choices. Their quarterback lineup, led by the dynamic Josh Allen, promises explosive performances, complemented by valuable contributions from Jared Goff and Anthony Richardson. Although their running back roster presents a challenge, with Najee Harris being a pivotal factor despite his lower ranking, the team scored major value with James Cook. Meanwhile, their wide receiver core, dazzling with stars like Malik Nabers and Drake London, ensures a consistent flow of points. The tight end position, often overlooked, offers a decisive edge with Sam LaPorta and Tyler Warren leading the charge in this TE Premium setup. With savvy draft strategies and a well-rounded team, JayKile1 is poised to not only improve upon their previous season but also make a significant mark in their competitive journeys.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, Clown-like Behavior stands poised to dominate, casting a shadow over both their division rivals and thousands of competitors in a sprawling tournament landscape. Majestically perched atop the Miami Dolphins division, Clown-like Behavior boasts an enviable arsenal, led by the indomitable Saquon Barkley, whose dazzling runs are expected to leave defenders reeling. Joining him in this backfield of mythic proportions are De'Von Achane, Josh Jacobs, and Joe Mixon, each primed to carve their own legends on the gridiron. While the wide receiver corps presents a touch of vulnerability with Jayden Higgins and Michael Pittman anchoring the lineup, the presence of Calvin Ridley and Cooper Kupp promises flashes of brilliance. The team's strength is further solidified by their dual tight end titans, T.J. Hockenson and the ageless Travis Kelce, whose combined efforts ensure that no defense can rest easy. Behind the strategy desk, savvy draft decisions have fashioned this team into a juggernaut; the acquisition of Saquon Barkley and Austin Ekeler at splendid value, alongside the opportunistic choice of J.J. McCarthy, has fortified the team's robust potential. Even the reach for Tyler Shough hints at a calculated gamble that may pay dividends down the road. As Clown-like Behavior embarks on this epic campaign, their path is illuminated with promise, and they aim to crown themselves as the elite, with aspirations as boundless as the sea of challengers they face.
