Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As Piels25 reluctantly braces for the 2025 fantasy football season, the outlook is grim, to say the least. The team's current standing at the bottom of the New York City FC division and languishing near the bottom percentile overall speaks volumes about their uphill battle. With a glaring weakness under center, Jordan Love and Geno Smith are set to steer the team with uninspiring rankings of QB20 and QB26 respectively, leaving the quarterback situation severely lacking. While the receiving corps, featuring A.J. Brown and Marvin Harrison Jr., offers a glimmer of hope with a mid-tier rank, the tight end position remains a glaring void, further compounded by the ill-fated decision to reach for players like Geno Smith and Kendre Miller well ahead of their average draft positions. The decision to secure Ashton Jeanty at the very top of the draft board also raises eyebrows, signaling questionable strategy choices that may haunt them throughout the season. It's a desolate landscape for Piels25, with the road to redemption marred by missteps and a roster fraught with vulnerabilities.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms ominously on the horizon, the DegenCheckers find themselves on the brink of a bleak campaign, mired in mediocrity and plagued by questionable draft decisions. With a division rank languishing at 11 and a disheartening overall percentile of just 11, the outlook is grim. The running back corps, spearheaded by Kaleb Johnson and a beleaguered David Montgomery, is alarmingly thin, offering little hope of salvation. Despite boasting the top tight end in Brock Bowers, the glaring weaknesses at quarterback with Sam Darnold, a lackluster QB28, threaten to undermine any chance of competitive resurgence. While the wide receivers offer a glimmer of potential, with Jaxon Smith-Njigba and Tee Higgins poised to shine, the team's ill-advised draft reaches have only compounded their woes. Shedeur Sanders, taken well ahead of his expected slot, epitomizes the misjudgments that could haunt the DegenCheckers this season. With youth on their side but experience sorely lacking, the team faces an uphill battle, their dreams of ascent stifled by shadows of doubt and the stark reality of their current standing.

As TheRevengeOfDopey heads into the 2025 season, there's little cause for optimism. Coming off a subpar 2024 campaign where they languished in the 21st percentile and managed to win just 28% of their games, the outlook remains bleak. Despite having a solid receiver lineup with Justin Jefferson, Tyreek Hill, and DK Metcalf, their overall team strength is undermined by glaring weaknesses elsewhere, particularly at tight end where Dallas Goedert, sitting at TE16, could be a major liability. This deficiency leaves them vulnerable in crucial matchups. While they snagged some players like Jared Goff and Trey Benson below their average draft positions, these minor victories might not be enough to bolster a squad that reached too early for players like Josh Jacobs. The team's current standing in both the division and tournament is disappointing, with little evidence suggesting a turnaround. Even with a small stack bonus from pairing Justin Jefferson with J.J. McCarthy, it's hard to see how they'll climb out of the lower ranks without significant improvement across the board. As it stands, TheRevengeOfDopey seems bound for another lackluster season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season approaches, AndrewHolva faces an uphill battle, with little to suggest they can climb out of their current predicament. Despite having the division's top group of running backs, led by De'Von Achane and Jonathan Taylor, the team struggles in other key areas. Wide receiver Jerry Jeudy represents a glaring weakness, and while his late draft selection might seem like a bargain, his performance last year casts doubt on his ability to elevate the team's standing. Furthermore, tight end Hunter Henry remains a pivotal yet unreliable asset; his inconsistent output could spell trouble for AndrewHolva's prospects. Last season's below-average finish doesn't inspire confidence, as the team remains mired in mediocrity with a 22nd percentile ranking overall and a dismal 9th place in the division. The decision to draft De'Von Achane significantly earlier than expected could haunt them if he fails to justify the leap, while Kenneth Walker III and Alvin Kamara may not be enough to offset these strategic missteps. Ultimately, Andrew Holva's prospects appear dim, with little hope of significant improvement from their lackluster 2024 campaign.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms, SPEEDZ finds itself in a precarious position, ranked 8th in their division and languishing in the 27th percentile overall. The team's prospects are further dimmed by a weak running back situation, with Omarion Hampton struggling at RB17. While the wide receiver corps boasts powerhouses like Ja'Marr Chase and Amon-Ra St. Brown, the reliance on an aging Cooper Kupp and the inconsistent Brandin Cooks may prove problematic. Cooks, in particular, is a critical but shaky component of the starting lineup, and his performance could be the linchpin for any success. Although the team secured value picks like Michael Penix Jr. and Cooper Kupp, they also squandered potential advantages by reaching for players such as Keenan Allen well ahead of their draft positions. With these missteps and an unsteady roster balance, SPEEDZ faces an uphill battle in their division and beyond, likely leading to another frustrating season for the team and its fans.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, BUProducerPete is poised to make an impressive comeback. Following a challenging 2024, the team now stands at a promising 61st percentile in tournament rankings and holds a reasonable position within their division. Despite some quarterback concerns, with C.J. Stroud and Matthew Stafford at the helm, BUProducerPete boasts the strongest roster of wide receivers in their league. With playmakers like Puka Nacua, Nico Collins, and other notable talents, the team is ready to capitalize on every opportunity. Jayden Higgins, despite being projected as a starter, has the potential to exceed expectations and solidify the team's receiving core. Meanwhile, Tyrone Tracy, acquired at great value, complements Christian McCaffrey in the backfield to create an interesting dynamic. The strategic acquisition of players has positioned BUProducerPete for a competitive season, with a blend of talent and perseverance that could see them rise through the ranks and challenge for top spots in both their division and the broader competition.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Team aamiraziz is poised for an exciting year with a well-rounded roster that promises both depth and potential. Their quarterback lineup is unmatched in the division, with Lamar Jackson leading the charge as the top-ranked QB, complemented by Baker Mayfield's solid presence. This dynamic duo guarantees consistent scoring opportunities, creating a strong foundation for the team's performance. While the running back corps faces challenges, the team's strength lies in its impressive array of wide receivers. Malik Nabers stands out as a top-tier talent, alongside Drake London and Mike Evans, who are poised to deliver exceptional performances each week. Zay Flowers adds another layer of explosive capability, enhancing the synergy with Lamar Jackson. Although Emeka Egbuka may face some pressure as a projected starter, his contribution will be crucial to the team's overall success. Savvy draft choices have provided great value, particularly with Lamar Jackson and Tyjae Spears, which could prove pivotal as the season unfolds. With strategic pairings like Jackson and Flowers, as well as Evans and Mayfield, Team aamiraziz boasts formidable stack bonuses that could propel them higher in the rankings. As they enter this season ranked sixth in their division and in the 62nd percentile overall, Team aamiraziz has the potential to climb the ranks and make a significant impact both on the divisional stage and beyond.

As Blade2025 gears up for the 2025 fantasy football season, the team is poised to make a strong impression with its dynamic roster and strategic lineup. Coming off a successful 2024 campaign where they finished in the 71st percentile, Blade2025 enters the new season with high expectations and a solid foundation. The team's quarterback duo of Jayden Daniels, ranked third in his position, and Justin Fields, ranked eighth, promises consistent scoring potential that will be crucial in climbing the ranks. While the wide receiver corps may appear less formidable, with Terry McLaurin leading the charge at WR19, the team's strength lies in its exceptional tight end group. Featuring Trey McBride, Evan Engram, and David Njoku, Blade2025 boasts the strongest tight ends in their division, providing an edge in this TE Premium setup. The running back situation, while respectable with Breece Hall and D'Andre Swift, hinges on the performance of Jordan Mason, who must step up as a projected starter. Notably, the team's shrewd drafting strategy landed great value with David Njoku, while taking a calculated risk on Tyler Shough. With a small stack bonus from the McLaurin-Daniels combination, Blade2025 is well-equipped to navigate the season's challenges and improve upon their current fifth division rank and 69th percentile tournament standing.

As the 2025 fantasy football season unfurls its tapestry of triumphs and trials, the WV Hillbilly Hardballers stand poised to carve their legacy into the annals of gridiron glory. Anchored by a commanding arsenal of quarterbacks, with the indomitable Josh Allen leading the charge, this team promises electrifying performances unmatched in prowess. Their strategic coup of securing Allen when others hesitated marks them as visionaries destined for accolades. The Hardballers' tight end trio, led by Sam LaPorta and T.J. Hockenson, is set to redefine the position's impact, weaving a web of points that will ensnare even the most formidable of adversaries in this TE Premium setup. Although their running back corps may appear as a less luminous constellation, the firepower of Joe Mixon remains a beacon of hope amidst the shadows. In the wide receiver realm, CeeDee Lamb and Brian Thomas Jr. will dance through defenses with grace and might, while Brandon Aiyuk's journey will be a pivotal chapter in the Hardballers' saga. The echoes of their draft night gamble on Aiyuk reverberate through the season, a testament to their daring spirit. Positioned with a respectable ranking in their division and a commendable percentile overall, the Hardballers straddle the threshold of greatness, teetering on the brink of an epic ascent. As the New York City FC division witnesses their rise, the world awaits the symphony of success orchestrated by the WV Hillbilly Hardballers.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Allstarandrew is poised for another thrilling campaign following their dominant performance last year. With a stellar array of talent that propelled them to the 98th percentile and an impressive 81% winning percentage in 2024, expectations are high. This year's squad holds formidable strength in its running back lineup, boasting the dynamic Jahmyr Gibbs and the ever-reliable Derrick Henry. Quinshon Judkins adds depth, while Rhamondre Stevenson, despite being a weaker projected starter, brings his own unique flair to the backfield. In this TE Premium setup, the team features an enviable trio of tight ends led by Travis Kelce, Mark Andrews, and Tyler Warren, who are sure to be game-changers in every matchup. While the wide receiver division rank stands at 9, the electrifying Travis Hunter and Xavier Worthy inject excitement, with veteran Stefon Diggs providing immense value as a late-round steal. Despite reaching a bit for Cole Kmet, the team has crafted a strategic stack bonus with superstar Patrick Mahomes and elite pass-catchers like Kelce and Worthy, promising explosive scoring potential. As Allstarandrew embarks on this season ranked third in their division and in an impressive 77th percentile overall, the stage is set for them to continue making waves and captivating fans with their remarkable performances.

As the 2025 fantasy football season unfolds, Salmon75 stands poised at the pinnacle of triumph, casting a formidable shadow across their division as they clutch tightly to the top spot and stride confidently through the upper echelons of the competition. With a backfield that boasts an enviable depth and power, led by the indomitable Saquon Barkley, whose prowess ranks him second among the elite, Salmon75 surges forward like a relentless tide. The dynamic duo of TreVeyon Henderson and RJ Harvey further fortify the team, flanking Barkley with an attack that leaves opponents in disarray. James Cook lends his swift agility to the mix, while the strategic acquisitions of Tank Bigsby and Isaac Guerendo bolster the reserves, adding unexpected bursts of brilliance that bewilder adversaries who underestimated their value. Yet, amidst this opulence of ground might, the aerial assault faces challenges. Chris Godwin, Jordan Addison, and Jameson Williams strive valiantly, striving to elevate their ranks and deliver catches that defy the odds. It is here that Jayden Reed emerges as a crucial figure, a diamond mined from the depths of undervaluation, his role pivotal in turning the tide when needed most. The team's strategic gambles have paid off handsomely; the acquisition of Reed at a bargain provides a silver lining to the wide receiver corps that seeks to prove naysayers wrong. Meanwhile, the presence of George Kittle enhances the tight end's realm, where his masterful play not only shores up the team's resolve but also adds an extra edge under the TE Premium setup. Through sharp strategy and adept maneuvering in drafts, Salmon75 has crafted a squad that perfectly marries power with finesse. As the league witnesses their ascent, the glory of Salmon75 shines brightly, their journey a spectacle of skill, determination, and the art of fantasy football warfare. With each passing week, their standings remain a testament to their enduring legacy, a legend in the making for the ages.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, Team Moonpipe stands as a testament to resilience and strategic acumen, ready to conquer the gridiron with ambitions as vast as the night sky. Rising like a phoenix from the ashes of last year's challenges, where they languished in the lower echelons with a mere 31% win rate, Moonpipe now gleams with potential as they enter the fray ranked second in their division and firmly in the upper echelons overall, nestled comfortably in the 81st percentile. This ascension has been powered by a formidable backfield duo spearheaded by Bijan Robinson, the apex predator of running backs, and the agile dynamo Bucky Irving. Their combined prowess promises to carve paths into the end zone with the ease of a hot knife through butter. Wide receiver Ladd McConkey, a draft steal, brings his lightning speed and sure hands to bolster the aerial assault, adding a layer of unpredictability that opponents will find difficult to contain. However, the team must navigate the turbulent waters of a less-than-stellar tight end situation, with Zach Ertz striving to defy expectations and prove doubters wrong. Meanwhile, Tre Harris, despite being under the scrutiny of skeptics, is poised to outshine his projections with the tenacity that defines this squad. With strategic drafts that secured key talents like Bo Nix and calculated reaches for promising players such as Cam Ward, Moonpipe is primed to weave an epic tale of redemption and triumph, captivating fans and foes alike as they storm towards fantasy glory.
