Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As the 2025 season looms large for Brett Whitefield (@BGWhitefield), a sense of despondency hangs over the team like a gathering storm. Their journey through the ranks sees them languishing at the bottom of the RacineBelles division, while their position in the broader landscape of nearly 5,000 competitors leaves much to be desired. Despite having a trio of quarterbacks that could rival any in the league, with Jayden Daniels leading the charge, they find themselves bereft of firepower where it counts most: the wide receiver corps. Chris Godwin, Jaylen Waddle, and George Pickens are expected to anchor the receiving game, but their middling rankings cast a shadow over any hope of resurgence. Even the tight ends, who provide a glimmer of hope with Trey McBride's prowess, can't quite lift the veil of mediocrity that cloaks the lineup. The real Achilles' heel, however, lies in the running back stable, where Bhayshul Tuten's role as a starter speaks volumes about the desperation at play. While they might have snagged some value in the depths of the draft with Xavier Legette, the glaring missteps in reaching for players like Tuten and Waddle prematurely have set a tone of frustration. As the season unfolds, Whitefield will need more than just a stroke of luck to muster any semblance of competitiveness.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, Andy Kusler (@akusler) prepares for a campaign that promises to be as thrilling as watching paint dry. Ranking 11th in their division and lounging comfortably in the 12th percentile overall, this team seems destined for mediocrity. The quarterback situation is best described as "tragic," with C.J. Stroud leading the charge at an uninspiring QB18. However, their tight end lineup is the team's attempt at brilliance, featuring the likes of George Kittle and T.J. Hockenson, a duo poised to turn in performances that might distract from the rest of the roster's woes. Meanwhile, Justin Jefferson offers a glimmer of hope among the wide receivers, supported by the solid but unspectacular Terry McLaurin and Mike Evans, the latter being a rare draft-day bargain for this squad. Draft tactics were hit-and-miss, with some head-scratching reaches like Adam Thielen going way ahead of his ADP, perhaps in a bid to corner the market on nostalgia. As for the running game, relying on Jordan Mason as a starter might just be audacious enough to make some waves—or merely sink the ship faster. In summary, Andy Kusler's season outlook is a curious blend of strategic gambles and questionable choices, poised for a performance that will be remembered—if only for its comedic value.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, the team led by Jeff Haverlack (@DLF_Jeff) braces for what seems to be a daunting journey ahead. Coming off an average performance last year, where they landed in the middle of the pack, this year presents a tougher challenge with their current standing at the lower end within their division and overall ranks. The team boasts a formidable backfield, headlined by Saquon Barkley and Josh Jacobs, both poised to deliver solid contributions. However, the air game looks shaky; DeVonta Smith and Jerry Jeudy lead a wide receiver core that lacks the top-tier explosiveness needed to compete at higher levels. The tight end situation is equally uninspiring, leaving the team vulnerable through the air. Despite shrewd draft moves with Smith, there were questionable decisions, like reaching early for players such as Baker Mayfield and Jerome Ford, which might haunt the team as the season unfolds. Tasked with sustaining a competitive edge in a sea of nearly 5,000 competitors, Jeff Haverlack's squad will need every ounce of grit and luck to find itself climbing from its humble beginnings this season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms, tina kampa (@vkngvxn) faces an uphill battle in the RacineBelles division, languishing at a disappointing rank of 9. The team finds itself in the 19th percentile overall, a testament to the challenges ahead. Despite boasting the strongest tight ends in the division, with Brock Bowers leading the charge, the rest of the roster leaves much to be desired. Bryce Young, a crucial yet troublingly weak link at QB22, casts a long shadow over the team's prospects. His performance could make or break their season, a daunting thought given the underwhelming quarterback lineup that also features J.J. McCarthy and Anthony Richardson. While Rashee Rice and Courtland Sutton offer glimpses of promise, their wide receiver corps ranks a mere 8th in the division, further complicating any potential path to success. Some shrewd draft picks like D'Andre Swift may bolster their chances, but the sting of reaching too soon for players like Roman Wilson reflects the haphazard strategy haunting this squad. As the season approaches, hope feels as distant as a playoff berth, leaving fans bracing for another year of dashed dreams and unfulfilled potential.

As the 2025 fantasy football season approaches, Walter Smith (@Wsfoot8) finds itself mired in mediocrity, casting a long shadow over its prospects. Last year's disappointing performance saw them languish well below average, and there's little hope for dramatic improvement this season. The team ranks eighth in its division, with a dismal overall standing that places them in the bottom quartile of competition. While their stable of running backs, led by the likes of Bijan Robinson and Chase Brown, remains the team's lone beacon of hope, the gaping holes at wide receiver could prove insurmountable. With Tetairoa McMillan and Davante Adams failing to inspire confidence, the offense may struggle to find its rhythm. The weight of expectation rests heavily on the shoulders of Tua Tagovailoa. However, as he occupies the unenviable position of being the squad's most critical yet potentially frail link, his performances could make or break the season. Despite some shrewd draft acquisitions, the early reach on several players has left the roster riddled with risk and devoid of the depth needed to compete against stronger opponents. It's hard to shake the feeling that Walter Smith's 2025 campaign might be a study in frustration and underachievement.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Connie Weiss (@Chweiss) is poised to make a significant leap forward. Coming off a challenging 2024 season, the team is eager to improve upon their 13th percentile scoring finish and 32% win rate. Currently ranked 7th in their division and in the 36th percentile overall, the team boasts the strongest quarterback lineup with Jalen Hurts, Joe Burrow, and Jordan Love leading the charge. While the running back duo of Travis Etienne and J.K. Dobbins remains a concern, the wide receiver corps promises to be a formidable force. CeeDee Lamb, Jaxon Smith-Njigba, Marvin Harrison Jr., and Zay Flowers are set to deliver explosive performances, although Emeka Egbuka's role as a starter will be crucial given his ranking. Strategic late-round picks like Ricky Pearsall and Marvin Mims offer excellent value, while some early reaches such as Jordan Love may need to justify their draft positions. With a keen eye on refining their strategy, Connie Weiss (@Chweiss) is ready to climb the ranks and shake up the competition this season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Kiersten Ruff (@unnecruffness) is poised to dazzle and possibly baffle with a lineup that's peppered with promise and peculiarities. Fresh off a thunderous 2024 campaign where they were nearly unstoppable, this year the team finds itself hovering around the middle of the RacineBelles standings with an overall ranking in the tantalizingly mischievous 45th percentile. Lamar Jackson, the crown jewel of the quarterback castle, is ready to lead the charge with his electrifying moves, while Sam Darnold lurks as the backup, ready to surprise everyone with his unpredictable flair. The wide receiving corps is brimming with talent, with Puka Nacua aiming to charm defenders with his fleet-footed finesse, ably flanked by Drake London. Jakobi Meyers and Jauan Jennings round out the aerial assault with what can only be described as a concoction of delightful chaos. However, all eyes are on Rachaad White, who stands as both the Achilles' heel and potential ace up the sleeve; his performance is as crucial as it is mysterious. In the draft, Kiersten Ruff showed the shrewdness of a fox, snagging Pat Freiermuth at a steal and raising eyebrows with some unexpected early grabs like the enigmatic Sam Darnold. The team also boasts Joe Mixon, taken a whisker ahead of expectations, poised to add his potent mix to the backfield brew. This season promises to be one wild ride, full of surprises, oddities, and maybe a dash of magic, as Kiersten Ruff @unnecruffness attempts to scale the ranks once more and sprinkle a little chaos into the fantasy football universe.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Casey Liebler (@_case88) stands poised to make a thrilling impact in the RacineBelles division and beyond. With an enviable wide receiver lineup, including Malik Nabers at WR4, the dynamic Tee Higgins at WR18, and the ever-reliable D.J. Moore at WR22, this team looks set to dominate the competition. Their depth is further enhanced by Khalil Shakir and Michael Pittman, both ready to step up when called upon. The strategic acquisition of Tyjae Spears and Kareem Hunt, picked well after their expected draft positions, showcases the shrewd management that has become a hallmark of this team. While Dallas Goedert at TE16 might be seen as a critical point for the team, his performance could be the key to elevating their game to new heights. Currently sitting comfortably in the 71st percentile overall, Casey Liebler is well-positioned to climb the ranks and challenge for top honors. With their blend of strategic acumen and on-field talent, they are sure to be one of the most exciting teams to watch this season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Ramon Gonzalez (@Fantasyrayg) is poised for an impressive campaign, standing out with a remarkable blend of talent and strategic drafting. Having climbed to 4th in the competitive RacineBelles division and achieved the 79th percentile overall, this team is set to surpass last year's hurdles and capitalize on its potential. Spearheaded by a formidable running back lineup featuring Ashton Jeanty, Bucky Irving, and Breece Hall, the team's ground game could be its most lethal weapon. The value acquisitions of Tyreek Hill and Calvin Ridley promise to bolster the wide receiver corps, potentially transforming perceived weaknesses into strategic advantages. Jake Ferguson at tight end, while a concern, has shown flashes of brilliance that could turn him into a pivotal player if he delivers consistently. With the stack bonus from Evan Engram and Bo Nix adding a layer of synergy to their offensive strategy, Ramon Gonzalez's squad is well-equipped to tackle the season head-on and make significant strides in both division and tournament play.

As the dawn of the 2025 fantasy football season approaches, the Gregg Chabot team stands poised with an electrifying mix of ambition and youthful vigor, eager to rise above last year's modest achievements. Nestled in the prestigious RacineBelles division, they are third among their peers and bask in the glory of the upper echelons, with an overall ranking in the esteemed 84th percentile. Their arsenal boasts an impressive array of wide receivers, arguably the envy of all within their league, with Ja'Marr Chase's dazzling prowess leading the charge, flanked by luminaries such as Travis Hunter and Brian Thomas Jr. Meanwhile, the quarterback and running back positions are areas of potential growth, yet this team's youth and strategic drafting acumen hint at untapped potential. Matthew Golden, though one of their more modest starters, stands ready to surprise and elevate his game to new heights. Their penchant for extracting value from the draft is evident, having secured key players like Ja'Marr Chase, Travis Hunter, and Sam LaPorta in what can only be described as masterstrokes of foresight. With a young average starter age of just 23.3, they bring a fresh and dynamic energy to the field, a stark contrast to some of their more seasoned competitors. The Gregg Chabot team is set to captivate and surprise, stepping confidently into a season that promises to be their most thrilling yet.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Ryan Livergood's team, affectionately known as @DadGoneStrong, stands out as a formidable contender. With an impressive ranking of second in their division, RacineBelles, and sitting in the 86th percentile overall, this team has skillfully crafted a roster that combines value with strategic foresight. The team's wide receiver lineup is enviable, boasting top-tier talents such as Amon-Ra St. Brown and A.J. Brown, who bring a dynamic blend of speed and hands to the field. Even with Brandon Aiyuk rounding out the starting lineup, this squad shows depth and versatility. Patrick Mahomes, secured at a later round, promises to deliver game-changing performances from the quarterback position, while players like Chris Olave and A.J. Brown were astutely drafted beyond their expected slots, highlighting the team's keen eye for value. Though some risks were taken on emerging talents like Kyle Monangai and Colston Loveland, the balance of reliable veterans and high-potential players ensures that @DadGoneStrong is poised to make waves this season. With a strategy that combines both calculated gambles and proven prowess, Ryan Livergood's team is set to compete fiercely and could well capture the coveted top spot.

As the 2025 fantasy football season approaches, Tom Bugg (@) stands poised for a remarkable campaign, showcasing an impressive roster that is the envy of competitors everywhere. Topping their division and ranking in the 96th percentile overall, this team combines strategic drafting with formidable talent. Leading the charge are powerhouse quarterbacks Josh Allen and Justin Herbert, supported by veteran Aaron Rodgers, providing unparalleled depth and consistency under center. While Kyle Pitts may be a point of intrigue as he aims to scale the tight end leaderboard, wide receivers like Nico Collins and Garrett Wilson ensure dynamic playmaking capabilities, complemented by DK Metcalf's raw athleticism and Jameson Williams' explosive potential. Strategic draft choices like James Cook and Ray Davis, taken at advantageous moments, have further strengthened the squad's competitive edge, offsetting any minor reaches like Aaron Rodgers or Dontayvion Wicks. With such a balanced and adaptive lineup, Tom Bugg (@) appears set not only to dominate their division but also to make a deep run in broader competitions, promising an exciting season ahead filled with potential triumphs.
