Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As CeeDee Lamb of god braces for the 2025 fantasy football season, it seems destined to be a struggle from the start. Ranked at the bottom of both their division, Sultanes de Monterrey, and overall tournament standings, the team's prospects look grim. A glaring weakness lies in their running back position, where Jaydon Blue, ranked an underwhelming RB42, fails to inspire confidence. Despite boasting the strongest lineup of wide receivers with stars like Justin Jefferson, CeeDee Lamb, and A.J. Brown, the team is still hindered by the necessity to start Michael Pittman at WR48, which underscores a lack of depth. Strategic missteps during the draft have also cost them dearly, as they reached significantly for players like Dak Prescott and Tyler Conklin far earlier than necessary, thereby squandering precious value. Although the small stack bonus of pairing Prescott with CeeDee Lamb might offer a glimmer of hope, it's overshadowed by the dubious returns on their other selections. Even their attempts at securing bargains with players like MarShawn Lloyd and Marquise Brown are unlikely to compensate for their overall shortcomings. As the season looms, it appears that CeeDee Lamb of god's journey will be an uphill battle, struggling to rise above their current lowly standings.

TE: Mark Andrews (S) (TE9 | $8 | 8.04), Cade Otton (TE24 | $0 | 11.09)

The 2025 season for polloassad12 is shaping up to be a challenging one, with the team languishing near the bottom of their division, ranked 11th, and scoring a dismal 4th percentile overall in the larger tournament. Despite possessing some strong talent at quarterback with Josh Allen leading the charge, there's a glaring imbalance across the roster. The running back corps is particularly concerning, with Isaac Guerendo starting despite being ranked 46th at his position—hardly inspiring confidence for consistent scoring. The wide receiver group, though deep, hasn't lived up to expectations, especially with key players like Stefon Diggs and Brandon Aiyuk having been picked significantly ahead of their average draft positions, only to underperform. The draft strategy seemed questionable, with reaches like Ladd McConkey and Christian Kirk failing to provide the expected return on investment. Even promising pickups like Kenneth Walker III can't seem to compensate for these shortcomings. With little room for error in such a competitive environment, polloassad12 is facing an uphill battle this season, where even standout performances from individual players may not be enough to lift them from their current standings.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms for PanthersFansMx - FGN, dark clouds seem to gather on the horizon. The team's glaring vulnerability at quarterback, with Caleb Williams struggling at QB12, casts a long shadow over their chances. Despite a relatively strong stable of running backs led by Christian McCaffrey at RB5, the reliance on an underperforming J.K. Dobbins as a starter highlights the fragility of their roster. With a middling receiving corps headlined by Malik Nabers WR4, any hopes of climbing the divisional ranks seem more like a distant dream. Rash decisions in the draft, such as reaching significantly for players like Xavier Legette and Tyler Lockett, further weaken their hand. Consequently, PanthersFansMx - FGN faces an uphill battle, languishing near the bottom of their division and sitting in the unenviable 18th percentile overall, with little sign of a turnaround on the horizon.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms on the horizon, TD en Familia Estefy stands at a crossroads, their outlook clouded by the stark contrast between past glories and present uncertainties. Last year's impressive run now seems like a distant memory as they find themselves languishing in the lower echelons of their division and the broader competitive landscape. Their once formidable running back lineup remains a glimmer of hope, with Ashton Jeanty and Derrick Henry ready to shoulder the load, yet even this strength is shadowed by the frailty in their receiving corps. D.J. Moore's presence offers some reliability, but with Ricky Pearsall and Luther Burden struggling to break through, the air game feels anemic. The success of Tyjae Spears, whose performance may make or break the season, hangs precariously over TD en Familia Estefy; his importance is palpable yet unsettling given his potential as a weak link. While there was some shrewd drafting in securing Matthew Stafford and Jaylen Wright post-ADP, these bright spots feel like inadequate consolation in a field teeming with more cohesive and balanced teams. With heavy hearts, the team braces for a season that could serve as the painful comedown from last year's high-flying success.

As the 2025 season looms for team daniiq, one can't help but marvel at their audacious draft choices, masterfully positioning themselves in the enviable position of being the eighth-best (or fourth-worst, if you prefer) in the illustrious Sultanes de Monterrey division, and firmly nestled in the lower 29th percentile overall. With a gaping hole where running backs should be, daniiq has bet the farm on their gallant band of wide receivers, highlighted by Amon-Ra St. Brown and Drake London, evidently hoping that their collective brilliance can eclipse the less-than-dazzling Jayden Higgins, whose WR52 ranking seems to linger like an awkward family member overstaying their welcome. Meanwhile, the team's tight ends could rival a Shakespearean chorus, with Trey McBride and Evan Engram poised to serenade us all with glorious fantasy points. Yet, amidst this towering ensemble of talent, it's the curious case of reaching for the likes of Tyler Warren and DK Metcalf, among others, that might just write the team's tragicomedic script for 2025. As the season unfolds, daniiq will undoubtedly thrill us with their ability to find value in forgotten places – like a bargain hunter at a flea market – while simultaneously showcasing the art of reaching higher, even when it's not advisable.

As the marianasancam embark on their 2025 campaign, they find themselves in a curious middle ground—a realm where wide receivers dance with the grace of enchanted flamingos amidst a field of whimsical uncertainty. Their ranks flutter between division rain and sunshine, with Ja'Marr Chase WR1 leading a kaleidoscope of yard-gobbling conjurers like Matthew Golden WR47 and Jaxon Smith-Njigba WR13. The ground game is a parade helmed by Bucky Irving RB8, while Jordan Mason RB38, plucked from obscurity with the deftness of a magician pulling a rabbit from a hat, stands ready to surprise. Jonnu Smith TE15, the team's secretive jester, wields his importance like an oversized frying pan—awkward yet critical. In the background, Baker Mayfield prepares for theatrics, having arrived early to the stage amidst murmurs of premature applause. Meanwhile, Tre Harris, a curious acquisition, flutters through anticipation's fog, more scribble than sculpture. As the team positions itself within the cosmic quagmire of percentile precision, their journey hints at a season both fantastical and strangely familiar.

As the 2025 fantasy football season unfolds, Team Doncarlonio finds itself poised for a promising ascent in both the tournament and their divisional standings. With an impressive roster of dynamic wide receivers, including Puka Nacua, Travis Hunter, and Tyreek Hill, Doncarlonio boasts one of the most formidable receiving corps in the league. This strength is further complemented by having some of the top tight ends in this TE premium setup, with Brock Bowers leading the charge. While the running back position remains a challenge, players like Kaleb Johnson and Aaron Jones are determined to elevate their game. Doncarlonio's management displayed shrewd draft strategy, securing significant value with quarterbacks like Brock Purdy and J.J. McCarthy well below their average draft positions. Though young, with an average starter age of just 24.5 years, the team's youthful energy and recent strategic adjustments hint at a potential rise in the ranks. As they look to surpass their mid-tier division rank and solid standing in the tournament, Colston Loveland's performance will be pivotal in turning their fortunes around. With renewed confidence and strategic adjustments, Doncarlonio aims to build on last year's foundation and make waves in the 2025 season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, CoachTobelio is poised to make some serious noise both in the division and beyond. With the dynamic Jayden Daniels and Jalen Hurts leading the quarterback squad, the team boasts the strongest QB lineup in their division, setting a solid foundation for success. While they may be ranked 5th in their division and in the 64th percentile overall, the potential for upward mobility is palpable. Isaiah Likely will be a pivotal player to watch; his performance could be the X-factor in propelling CoachTobelio higher in the rankings. This youthful group, with an average age of just 24.8, is bursting with energy and has strategically drafted players like Omarion Hampton and RJ Harvey for excellent value. Despite reaching on a few selections, including Tetairoa McMillan, the talent across the board is undeniable. Keep an eye on this underdog team as they aim to climb the ranks with their innovative plays and spirited determination.

TE: Tucker Kraft (S) (TE12 | $5 | 10.05), Juwan Johnson (TE31 | $0 | 18.05)

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Team JManuel stands poised for a thrilling campaign. With a solid foundation in place, they enter the competition ranked impressively within their group and hold a formidable overall standing. The dynamic backfield duo of Saquon Barkley and De'Von Achane promises to be the driving force behind the team's success, providing a consistent and powerful punch to challenge any opponent. Complementing their ground game, the team's wide receiver corps, featuring standout talents like Marvin Harrison Jr., Tee Higgins, and Terry McLaurin, ensures a versatile and high-octane aerial attack. Though the quarterback position might appear as a potential area of vulnerability, the team has managed to extract exceptional value from selections like Jordan Love and Bryce Young, who are poised to exceed expectations. Tucker Kraft's performance at tight end will be crucial, as his contributions could fill the gap and elevate the team's overall offensive strength. With astute drafting decisions that maximized potential and minimized risk, JManuel is well-equipped to navigate the challenges ahead, blending strategic prowess with on-field talent to make a strong case for success in the coming season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, team GilMtz stands poised on the precipice of glory, a juggernaut ready to unleash its might upon the gridiron. Residing comfortably in the upper echelons of their division, third only to titans, they also bask in the rarefied air of the 83rd percentile among thousands of contenders nationwide. With the precision and leadership of Joe Burrow, ranked fifth amongst quarterbacks, leading the charge, alongside the electric dynamism of Justin Fields, who was skillfully drafted well beyond his anticipated position, this team's quarterback arsenal is nothing short of formidable. Their strategic acumen in player acquisition is further exemplified by securing talents like Anthony Richardson at an unexpected value, fortifying their offensive core. Though Darnell Mooney, taken earlier than perhaps prudent, presents a potential vulnerability as one of the weaker links, he remains a part of a wide receiver corps strengthened by the promising Nico Collins and the ever-reliable George Pickens. The supporting cast, including players like Jauan Jennings, secured with shrewd late-round picks, adds depth to their assault. Notably, their adept maneuvering in the draft secured sleeper picks such as Tyler Shough and Chuba Hubbard, promising untapped potential. As the Sultanes de Monterrey division braces for an exhilarating season, GilMtz's blend of tactical foresight and raw talent promises not just participation, but domination, in what is sure to be a saga of epic proportions.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, Pittfx16 is poised for an exciting run, standing proudly at second place in the Sultanes de Monterrey division and in the impressive 92nd percentile overall. This team's robust lineup of running backs is a force to be reckoned with, featuring the likes of Bijan Robinson, Jonathan Taylor, and Alvin Kamara, who promise to deliver consistent performances week in and week out. The strategic drafting of Tony Pollard and Zach Charbonnet, who were secured later than their anticipated draft positions, adds depth and value to this formidable backfield. Despite the wide receiver position being a bit of a work-in-progress with Khalil Shakir and Rashid Shaheed leading the charge, Pittfx16's tight ends are a powerhouse unit in this TE Premium format. With George Kittle, Travis Kelce, and David Njoku all in the top 10 of their position, the team boasts a perfect balance of skill and tactical play. While there were some reaches in the draft that might have cost the team a bit of value, the savvy acquisition of Dylan Sampson later than expected adds another layer of potential surprise and excitement. As Pittfx16 navigates what promises to be a thrilling season, their well-rounded roster positions them as serious contenders, ready to make significant waves on their path to victory.

As the 2025 fantasy football season dawns, TD en Familia Pac stands poised on the precipice of greatness, ready to conquer the gridiron with an unparalleled blend of talent and strategic sagacity. Sitting triumphantly atop their division, the Sultanes de Monterrey, and in the rarefied air of the 97th percentile overall, this team is a formidable testament to meticulous planning and shrewd drafting. Their ascent has been nothing short of meteoric, especially considering their commendable 66th percentile finish last year, which laid the groundwork for their current supremacy. The team's offensive arsenal is headlined by a quartet of virtuosos behind the center, anchored by the enigmatic Lamar Jackson at QB1, whose electrifying play style is complemented by the cerebral prowess of Bo Nix, a strategic coup at QB7, thoughtfully chosen far below his expected draft position. In the backfield, a phalanx of gladiators charges forth, led by the relentless Josh Jacobs at RB10 and the dynamic Chase Brown at RB12, whose acquisition was a masterstroke of draft strategy. These stalwarts are backed by an impressive depth, ensuring that each down is met with unrelenting ferocity. Although the wide receiver and tight end corps present opportunities for growth, the presence of Davante Adams ensures a steady stream of highlight-reel moments. Javonte Williams, a pivotal component of the roster, stands as a symbol of both value and potential, ready to exceed expectations despite his projections. With every player finely tuned for the impending campaign, TD en Familia Pac is not merely a team; it is a symphony of potential, harmonizing towards a crescendo of victory in 2025.
