Scott Fish Bowl Rankings, Analysis, and Team Breakdowns

Rankings are based on actual Scott Fish Bowl ADP from the FantasyLife Scott Fish Bowl tool. Note that in a major tournament like this with nearly 5,000 teams, there are miniscule degrees of separation at play. One player having a breakout season can drastically change a team's results.

These rankings are intended to be entertaining and add in a small way to a wonderful cause. Please consider donating to Fantasy Cares.

As the 2025 fantasy football season looms on the horizon, the outlook for grieserulz seems bleak, teetering on the edge of despondency. Coming off a mediocre 2024 performance, finishing in the middle of the pack, the team's current standing is a dismal reality check. Ranked dead last in their division, the UNLV Runnin Rebels, and languishing in the bottom 7th percentile across the tournament, hope is fleeting. While the team boasts a formidable tight end lineup, with the likes of LaPorta and Hockenson leading the charge, the weaknesses elsewhere are glaring. Michael Penix Jr., the underwhelming QB21, casts a shadow over any offensive aspirations. Wide receiver depth, or lack thereof, is painfully evident as Michael Pittman, WR48, is expected to contribute significantly. Despite some savvy draft picks like Ashton Jeanty, the reaches in key areas have left the roster feeling paper-thin. The road ahead looks arduous, with little optimism that grieserulz will claw back from the depths of mediocrity this season.

As kickinbass420 looks ahead to the 2025 fantasy football season, the outlook appears rather bleak. Despite ending 2024 with hopes of climbing from the depths of mediocrity, the squad is once again languishing near the bottom in both their division and the broader competition. With a division rank of 11 and sitting uncomfortably in the 7th percentile overall, the team seems stuck in reverse. While the tight end duo of George Kittle and Mark Andrews remains formidable in this TE Premium setup, the rest of the roster is riddled with concerns. The running back corps, led by Tyjae Spears, one of the weakest starters in the league at his position, is a glaring issue. Wide receivers, though featuring the elite Justin Jefferson, lack depth with Josh Downs and Jerry Jeudy failing to inspire confidence. The team managed to snag some value with Kenneth Walker III, but reaching for players like Joe Burrow and Daniel Jones well ahead of their average draft positions has left the roster imbalanced and vulnerable. Even the potential stack bonus from pairing Kittle with quarterback Brock Purdy isn't enough to offset the overall lack of firepower. With such a tenuous grip on competitiveness, kickinbass420 faces an uphill battle in avoiding another forgettable season.

TE: Tyler Higbee (TE36 | $0 | 21.11)

The Fantasy Football Show is poised for a rough 2025 season, particularly when juxtaposed against its dominant 2024 campaign. Once thriving at the pinnacle of fantasy football success with an impressive 100 percentile finish and an 83% winning record, they're now languishing at a dismal 11th percentile overall with a disappointing 10th place in their division. Despite having strong quarterbacks like Josh Allen, Justin Herbert, and Aaron Rodgers, this team has glaring weaknesses that threaten to undermine any potential success. The tight end situation is a complete mess, providing little reassurance. The wide receiver lineup, although not the worst, isn't exactly top-tier either, with Emeka Egbuka being a projected starter despite his lackluster WR49 status. While Garrett Wilson and Mike Evans offer some hope, the rest of the receiving corps falls short of inspiring confidence. Rachaad White might have been a steal at his draft position, but overreaches on players such as Justin Herbert and Aaron Rodgers have severely diminished the team's draft value. As the season unfolds, The Fantasy Football Show may find themselves struggling to find victory in a competitive landscape that appears increasingly unforgiving.

As MaupinUp braces for the 2025 season, the forecast seems grim amidst the sprawling competition. Hovering at rank 9 within their division, the UNLV Runnin Rebels, and anchored in the lowly 16th percentile overall, the outlook is anything but promising. Despite boasting the division's most formidable tight end ensemble, led by the indomitable Brock Bowers and seasoned veteran Travis Kelce, the team faces staggering deficits elsewhere. The wide receiver corps, with Nico Collins valiantly aiming to defy his WR7 position and Jordan Addison battling inconsistency, does little to inspire hope. Moreover, a strategic misstep in reaching for Baker Mayfield early on, banking on his unpredictable arm, leaves a precarious hole behind center. While Kyle Pitts remains a pivotal cog in their offensive machine, his unpredictable performance could tip the scales toward further disappointment. Even the draft offered a mixed bag of decisions, occasionally gambling away potential value. As MaupinUp reluctantly steps onto the field, the specter of an uphill battle looms large, casting shadows over aspirations and leaving fans yearning for a beacon of hope amidst the gloom.

As the nipponcracker team gears up for the 2025 fantasy football season, the outlook appears rather bleak. Despite their average performance last year, ending up in the 45th percentile, this season's prospects seem less promising with a current ranking of 8th in the division and languishing in the 20th percentile overall. While their running back core, led by Derrick Henry and supported by Kyren Williams and James Cook, remains a bright spot, the team is severely hampered by the shaky play of Matthew Stafford at QB. Stafford, drafted significantly earlier than his ADP, poses a serious risk as the projected starter and could prove to be the team's Achilles' heel. In the wide receiver department, the situation is equally concerning with Davante Adams and Jaylen Waddle not living up to expectations, being ranked 10th within the division. Despite picking up Khalil Shakir as a bargain, the nipponcracker team reached on several other draft picks, potentially costing them crucial value. With a lack of depth and stability, coupled with an over-reliance on their star players performing against the odds, this could be a long and difficult season for the nipponcracker team.

The 2025 fantasy football season for mysticleader24 promises to be a rollercoaster of epic proportions, filled with dazzling highs and the occasional head-scratching low. With a division rank of 7 and standing in the 35th percentile overall, this team is poised to make a splash... or at least a noticeable ripple! The quarterback trio of Cam Ward, Jayden Daniels, and Justin Fields forms a formidable force, dazzling defenses like a trio of wizards casting spells on the gridiron. Meanwhile, running back TreVeyon Henderson may feel a bit like the lone hobbit on a quest, seeking companionship in a barren wasteland of running backs. The wide receivers shine as the team's crown jewels, glimmering with the brilliance of Travis Hunter, Drake London, and Terry McLaurin, alongside the dynamic duo of Courtland Sutton and Calvin Ridley. Even Cooper Kupp, picked up at a steal, adds a hint of magical mystery to the mix. Ricky Pearsall brings depth to the elven army of receivers, adding a touch of enchantment. However, tight end Hunter Henry, the team's achilles heel, could be the impish trickster that tests the team's mettle. Will he become the hero they need, or the jester leading them astray? Only time will tell. And let's not forget the mighty stack bonus courtesy of Terry McLaurin and Jayden Daniels, though it might be more of a secret handshake than a game-changing alliance. With a few strategic reaches in the draft, particularly on Jayden Daniels and Terry McLaurin, this squad is ready to prove that sometimes, a little irrational exuberance can pay off big. Watch out for the mysticleader24 – whether they unleash a storm or a drizzle, they're sure to leave an impression.

As the 2025 season unfolds for EgggsAndBacon, an enigmatic journey is set to commence in a realm where pigskin dreams and breakfast fantasies collide. Teetering on the precipice of mediocrity in a peculiar realm where eggs may as well be juggling flaming spatulas, this team found itself comfortably nestled at sixth in their division, as if cosily wrapped in a bacon blanket. The quarterbacks, led by the ever-illuminating Lamar Jackson, resemble the majestic narwhals of the gridiron sea, cruising effortlessly atop the waves, while Patrick Mahomes and Tua Tagovailoa provide an intriguing symphony of spiral passes and sideline acrobatics. However, the tight end void remains a mysterious abyss, perhaps best filled with wishes and whimsies. Najee Harris, the team's linchpin running back, embarks on his season like a whimsical bard—sometimes striking the right chord, other times leaving audiences in bewildered silence. In contrast, the wide receivers glide across the field as if borne on wings of buttery toast, with A.J. Brown and Jaxon Smith-Njigba dancing to the tune of yardage triumphs. Chris Godwin's sly acquisition in the ninth round whispers tales of shrewd scheming, while Cam Skattebo and Jerome Ford stand as curious relics of draft-day magic, plucked from the depths like forgotten treasures. Caught in the swirling tides of fantasy fortune, EgggsAndBacon stands at the 49th percentile, poised to ascend the ranks like a pancake flipping triumphantly through the air. And though the reach for Patrick Mahomes may have seemed premature, his alliance with Xavier Worthy promises a synergy as unpredictable as syrup on eggs. In this season of oddities and aspirations, EgggsAndBacon delights in the chaos, preparing to serve up a feast of fantastical football memories.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, @PaulCharchian looks poised to make waves with a strategically assembled roster that combines savvy draft value and promising talent. Anchored by standout tight end Trey McBride, who sits impressively at TE2 in this TE Premium league setup, the team boasts formidable depth at receiver with Puka Nacua and Rashee Rice leading the charge. While Dallas Goedert's performance as TE16 could be a pivotal factor for the team's overall success, the adept drafting of players like J.K. Dobbins and Zay Flowers well below their expected slots has provided a competitive edge. With a balanced approach that emphasizes both strength and potential, @PaulCharchian enters the season positioned to compete fiercely within their division and make a significant impact in the broader tournament landscape.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, michaelmikedavis is poised to turn heads with a lineup that promises thrilling performances and strategic gameplay. With a division rank of 4 and sitting comfortably in the 78th percentile overall, this young and dynamic team is ready to make significant waves in the competition. Spearheaded by an electrifying wide receiver core featuring top-tier talents like Ja'Marr Chase and Amon-Ra St. Brown, michaelmikedavis boasts the strongest group of wideouts in their division. The addition of standout players such as Brian Thomas Jr. and Tyreek Hill further bolsters their aerial attack, making them a formidable force to contend with. While the running back position presents a challenge, the team's youthful energy and the savvy drafting of J.J. McCarthy and C.J. Stroud show a proactive approach in addressing any potential gaps. Jayden

Higgins, projected as a starter, plays a critical role as he steps into the spotlight, and his performance could be the key to elevating the team to new heights. With a strategic balance of seasoned stars and budding talents, this team is set on a promising path, ready to capitalize on their strengths and push for a memorable season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, team brucea is poised for an exciting journey. With a strong standing as third in their division and situated in the impressive 83rd percentile overall, this team enters the competition with a solid foundation. The running back lineup is nothing short of formidable, featuring Jahmyr Gibbs, De'Von Achane, and Jonathan Taylor, whose stellar rankings promise dynamic performances each week. Particularly notable is the strategic draft value they secured with Achane and Taylor, setting the stage for consistent point production. While the wide receiver corps faces challenges, headlined by Marvin Harrison Jr.'s potential to shine, the team's small but strategic stack bonus from Kyler Murray and Harrison Jr. adds a layer of competitive edge. A calculated late-round pick in Jaylen Wright also enhances their depth. Despite some early gambles, like reaching for Russell Wilson, brucea's tactical draft choices and powerhouse running backs place them in prime position for a successful season. As they gear up for competition, the synergy and perseverance embedded in this lineup promise thrilling matchups ahead.

TE: Mike Gesicki (TE22 | $1 | 13.10), Taysom Hill (TE42 | $0 | 21.10)

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, SCFF is poised for an impressive campaign, building on their remarkable journey from last year's average performance. Climbing to the 90th percentile in overall tournament rankings and holding a strong second position in the highly competitive UNLV Runnin Rebels division, SCFF is ready to shine. With a receiving corps that boasts the explosive talents of Malik Nabers (WR4) and Ladd McConkey (WR10), the team is set to light up the scoreboard. The wide receiver lineup is further strengthened by the likes of D.J. Moore and DK Metcalf, both ready to deliver big plays. Although the tight end position may not be their strongest suit, with Mike Gesicki at TE22, SCFF compensates with a solid running game led by top-ranked Bijan Robinson. The team also secured great value in the draft, particularly with Breece Hall, whose strategic placement could prove pivotal throughout the season. Brandon Aiyuk, while considered one of the less prominent starters, has the potential to exceed expectations and contribute significantly. With Dylan Sampson providing depth at running back, picked much later than anticipated, SCFF shows a savvy strategy in player selection. All eyes are on this dynamic team as they aim to convert their draft day success into a championship-winning season.

As the 2025 fantasy football season kicks off, titletowntremor emerges as a formidable contender with their sights set on dominating both their division and the larger field. Rising from a below-average performance last year, this team has transformed into a powerhouse, claiming the top spot in their division and an enviable 99th percentile ranking overall. While the quarterback situation remains a challenge with Trevor Lawrence and Bryce Young leading the charge, it's the unparalleled depth and strength of their running backs that sets titletowntremor apart. With Saquon Barkley, drafted at exceptional value, and Christian McCaffrey leading a fearsome backfield that also includes standout players like Josh Jacobs and Alvin Kamara, the team's ground game is unrivaled. Even Rhamondre Stevenson, one of their weaker projected starters, adds valuable depth and versatility.

SFB15 - UNLV Runnin Rebels 2025

Though the wide receiver corps, headlined by Stefon Diggs, might appear less impactful, the strategic draft decisions have fashioned a balanced and potent roster. As titletowntremor gears up for another season, their savvy acquisitions and resilient spirit promise an exciting journey toward victory.
